NICE GARGIE, DON'T GRAB NOW!—Private Julius Gerlick, of the Atlanta Ordnance Motor Base, didn't seem a bit scared, but he had circus-goers on edge yesterday while feeding Gargantua. Gerlick was one of the big fellows' keepers before going into the Army two months ago. He says the super-gorilla was a lot of fun.

Atlanta Scrap Tonnage Shows Big Increase

Atlanta got downright scrappy about scrap yesterday, and the result was a neat rise in tonnage! Collections in the Buckhead section netted 72,675 pounds from the curbs, and the industrial division reported a total of 1,690,000 pounds from 56 firms.

The reports as the last week of the Newspapers' scrap drive got under way added an optimistic note to the campaign in Fulton and DeKalb counties. The drive is running far short of the 100-pounds-per-person goal set by Donald M. Nelson, WPB chief, in his nationwide appeal.

With five more days to go in all divisions—curbing collections, industrial, jalousy, rural and school—the two counties are expected to bring the total tonnage much closer to the goal.

Schools which are guarding the tonnage of their scrap piles in the competition for $1,000 put up by The Constitution and Journal are believed to have in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 pounds scattered throughout the area.

The industrial division is looking for a big increase in returns, only 56 of the thousands of manufacturers, business and commercial houses having turned in their figures.

Collections from curbs will continue today in the section west of Buckhead. The area is bounded on the north by West Pace's Ferry road; on the west by Ridge-wood road and the Seaboard railroad; on the south by the Seaboard railroad, and on the east by Buckhead and the Seaboard railroad.

Residents in this area are urged to have their scrap out on curbs early so the trucks can keep moving the scrap into dealers' yards. A map of the area to be covered tomorrow will be found on page 17.

Ex-Keeper Feeds 'Gargie,' Says He Missed Him.

By AL SHARP.

Private Julius Gerlick, of the Atlanta Ordnance Motor Base, is the bravest soldier this side of a foxhole in the Solomons as far as thousands of circusgoers are concerned.

For they saw him with their own eyes yesterday afternoon talking to the toothy Gargantua as if he were an old pal and actually giving the big fellow food and a drink of water. There he was, standing up there at the cage door and pouring the water down his throat, they'll tell you. Handing him food, too, mind you.

Once the 550-pound super-gorilla lunged at the close-set bars and nicked Gerlick's finger. But he didn't mind, just kept on talking to him.

Two Are Old Pals.

Gerlick, of course, is an old friend of Gargantua—well, an old friend, if he has any. As the private explained, though, Gargantua hasn't had any close friends since he was burned with acid when a baby of some 250 pounds.

"I surely do miss him," Gerlick went on. "I'd been one of the keepers for Gargantua since 1939 when I went to the Army a couple of months ago."

"Sure you get to like him. Take in the morning, for instance. He slept in the little cage at the end of the big one where we fed him. He'd get up in the morning and in a playful mood. He doesn't get mean at night and when lots of people are around."

New Blanket a Night.

"Anyway, every morning he felt pretty good. Instead of leaving his blanket in the smaller cage, he'd take it with him into the larger cage. Then he'd hold out the end

Two Million French Poised For Outbreak

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(P)—A vast underground Army numbering up to 2,000,000 Frenchmen is poised for mass revolt against Pierre Laval's program of forced labor for the Germans, a Fighting French spokesman said tonight as reports of mutinies, desertions and suicides among Hitler's own troops in Norway were added to accounts of spreading unrest in conquered Europe.

Laval either must back down on his plan to conscript 150,000 skilled workers for the Nazis or be thrown out of office on a wave of revolt, the French spokesman predicted. If he does back down, this source added, the Germans themselves might oust the Vichy government chief.

With the critical French situation boiling toward a showdown, this was the picture elsewhere in Nazi-conquered lands, as drawn by dispatches from the continent and statements from governments-in-exile here:

Norway: Mounting defections among the 200,000 Nazi occupation troops, resulting from the severe climate, virtually no home leaves, fears of being sent to the Russian front and the hostility of 98 per cent of the Norwegian people.

An authoritative Norwegian informant said that 1,000 Germans stationed north of Kirkenes rebelled at an order transferring

Santa's Busy Building Arms; Kids All-Out for War Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(P)—The kiddie car has become an All-American peep and youngsters are all out for war games, but they'll play with nonpriority equipment.

Santa Claus' pack may be bulkier with armament miniatures, but it will weigh less this year. Wood and cardboard have replaced metals, rubber and other materials needed by grownups at war.

The little toy soldier won't collect all that about all that could attack him successfully would be fire or termite. Tanks, planes, battleships, jeeps and the complete list of war equipment are armored in heavy paint. Some even come already camouflaged.

Many are of a size for the junior warrior to man himself. There's a super-dreadnaught battleship

Enemy Craft Also Bombard American Lines

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(P)—United States warships, joining in the Battle of the Solomons, have bombarded and blown up ammunition dumps the Japanese had collected for their all-out assault on the Marine and Army men at Guadalcanal, the Navy disclosed late today.

Whether this accurate shooting by the Navy, coupled with constant, furious assaults on the enemy from the air, had thrown the Japanese timetable awry was not stated, but the fact remained that at last reports the big enemy land offensive had not yet got under way.

"No recent troop activity or enemy landings on Guadalcanal have been reported," said a Navy communique.

Fleet Heard From.

The communique, containing the first report in more than a week of the fleet's activity in waters previously believed dominated by the Japanese, said that American surface vessels shelled the enemy's positions in northwestern Guadalcanal the morning of October 17, with direct hits setting off heavy explosions and fires in ammunition dumps.

The presence of American warships appeared to foreshadow a possible early engagement between the opposing surface vessels which could prove decisive to the outcome of the Solomons campaign.

The Navy communique related that during three days beginning October 16, American planes—both long-range Army bombers from General Douglas MacArthur's command and Navy-Marine Corps fighters and bombers based on the Solomons—had pounded enemy ships and installations throughout the islands.

Reketa Bay Raid.

In a smashing raid October 16 on the Japanese at Reketa bay, American planes fired fuel storage facilities, bombed aircraft batteries and destroyed 14 planes, 12 of them on the ground. The same day, four direct bomb hits completed the destruction of two of the three enemy transports previously damaged and beached on the northwest coast of Guadalcanal.

On the morning of October 17 the Navy's surface ships staged their bombardment of Japanese positions on Guadalcanal, and American planes from the Guadalcanal air base bombed and strafed the enemy's ground forces on the island throughout the day.

Americans Shelled.

Japanese warships shelled the American positions the night of October 17, but the enemy's attempt Sunday to carry out a bombing attack on the vital American-held airfield on Guadalcanal was broken up by Navy-Marine Corps fighters.

A formation of about 20 Japanese bombers, escorted by an equal number of Zero fighters, was intercepted by the American fliers, who shot down eight of the bombers and 11 Zeros. Two of the American fighters were lost.

So far as is known, the Japanese have landed no reinforcements on Guadalcanal since October 15. There is still a large concentration of enemy warships and transports in the Shortland Island area of the northwestern Solomons, but this force has been bombed repeatedly by long-range heavy bombers from General MacArthur's southwest Pacific command.

A further indication of Army-Navy co-operation in the Solomons struggle was the communique's report that in the raid on Reketa Bay, 115 miles north of Guadalcanal, on Santa Isabel Island, Army flying fortress bombers were accompanied by

Jere A. Wells Is Re-elected To School Post

The Fulton county board of education accepted, at a meeting yesterday, the resignation of Knox Walker as superintendent and immediately elected Jere A. Wells, former superintendent, to succeed him.

Wells resigned June 30th to enter the race for Congress against Robert Ramspeck and was defeated by a narrow margin. In his letter of resignation, Walker said that, after his election as superintendent, he would resign in the event the latter failed of election to Congress.

The board said it had not been a party to any such understanding. Members praised Walker's high sense of honor in keeping his word, but emphasized that his return would be in the best interests of the system.

Acting Chairman George Whitman presided in the absence of Chairman Clark Howell, now a lieutenant colonel in the Army. Other members present were W. E. Taliaferro, Arthur Wrigley and T. W. Moore.

Walker's resignation will be effective November 1. Members of the board said he would remain in the system, but did not say in what capacity. Before he became superintendent, he was general teaching spotter.

Even dolls fall in with war styles. Finest collection is that of little ladies garbed in costumes of the United Nations. Baby dolls will be soft and cuddly, but stuffed with nonpriority materials and representative declared.

Setups of Army encampments may be had complete from barracks to sandbags. For those with a rural taste, the farmyard setups point to food production efforts.

"The most popular item for older youngsters is modeling," the toy man said. Light, soft balala wood comes roughly shaped to be whittled and planned to exactness for construction of ships, planes and weapons.

Identification models of planes of all belligerent nations provide a real means of helping the war effort because they can be used for teaching spotters.

Only problem Santa's research engineers haven't licked yet is a nonpriority electric train.

Japs Threaten to Kill Captive U. S. Fliers

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(P)—In a threat of reprisal executions of American prisoners of war, Japan declared today that American fliers captured after the April 18 raid on Tokyo would be punished for acts of inhumanity and said fliers seized after any similar raids would be tried for their lives.

Just what prisoners Japan might make the objects of this vengeance was not clear. Brigadier General James H. Doolittle who led the raiding flight said not a plane was lost in Japan. One United States bomber came down in Soviet Siberia and the crew has been held there.

Tokyo and Berlin radios broadcast and rebroadcast the threat announced first by the press headquarters of the Japanese imperial command.

The press headquarters was quoted as saying that American airmen—their number not specified—had been captured in the April 18 raid, were found guilty of inhuman conduct, and would be punished conformably with military law.

Amid the first excited welter of Japanese radio accounts of the American attack on her cities, Tokyo claimed some of the raiders were shot down, and built this up in subsequent broadcasts until it was reported that nine American planes were downed. After that, however, the claim was allowed to die out amid a confusion of conflicting reports.

General Prince Naruhiko Higashikuni, Japanese home defense chief, broadened the threat to include the future. The prince is head of a collateral branch of the imperial family.

He announced that any Allied airmen captured in the course of raids on Japan, Manchukuo or Japanese-controlled territory would be subject to trial and punishments including death if found guilty of inhumanities.

The Japanese alleged that the Americans bombed hospitals and machinegunned schoolchildren. It seemed likely from the tenor of Japan's complaint that she would regard any bombing of her homeland an act of inhumanity.

Axis broadcasts quoted the Japanese newspaper Yomiuri Hochi as complaining that "Americans

City Remains In Grave Peril, Moscow Says

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—(P)—Sudden death spread by Russian rifles and artillery among the 75,000 Germans attacking a narrow sector of northwest Stalingrad was reported weakening the Nazi offensive today, limiting its gains to a single block of ruined houses.

The resolute Russians declared they had converted the latest German offensive, now five days old, into a long grinding battle like its forerunners by wholesale killing of the attackers, and wearing down the survivors to exhaustion by day and night counterattacks.

Stalingrad remained in grave peril, however, since the Germans appeared intent on occupying the Volga city and thereby provide a victory needed not only for military reasons but for home front morale as well.

(The German communique, unusually brief, said that a conquered industrial area had been mopped up and that planes attacking east of the Volga destroyed 11 oil trains. Further progress was claimed in the western Caucasus where a fortified mountain was claimed. Bombing attacks were reported on the central front where the Germans have said there are vast Russian troop movements, hinting at a new Russian offensive.)

The Moscow communique said the Germans paid hundreds of lives, 18 tanks and 14 planes for their latest gain.

Indicative of the terrible attrition levied by the grim defenders of Stalingrad was a Pravda dispatch saying that of more than 4,000 troops used in the siege, only 200 survived. Prisoners and captured documents were said to have substantiated the story.

The main German effort was to exploit and widen the wedge driven near the Volga through the capture last week of a factory set-

Time Is Called Ally of Japs In Oil Crisis

Weakness in Offensive Causes Steady Drain on Gas Reserves.

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN.
PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 19.—(P)—Time is an ally of the Japanese working against the United Nations in the Pacific war in one important military factor, the matter of gasoline and fuel oil supplies, authorities whose opinion carries weight said today.

A weakness in Japan's offensive power, said these sources, who can not be identified by name, has been the steady drain on gasoline and fuel reserves without the production for replacement. But time may change this.

Japan launched her war effort with a large reserve of oil, a large part of which was purchased in the United States. Its own resources are relatively nil, the production of the Sakhalin island, half of which is owned by Japan and half by Soviet Russia.

Official U. S. Navy estimates were that Japan had a fuel reserve of two years for her war machine. British estimates were that the supply was ample for only 18 months.

One of the prime objectives in Japan's southwest Pacific drive was the 60,000,000 barrels a year production of the Netherlands East Indies. For more than 10 years Japan had been infiltrating this area, buying oil rights wherever possible.

Today Japan holds this oil-producing area, and in addition to the oil fields of Burma, which before the conquest produced 8,000,000 barrels a year.

Experts familiar with the plans for destruction of the N. E. I. oil fields in event of Japanese conquest figured that it would take from six to 18 months to restore the fields to production. It is known that Japan was prepared with tools and machinery to repair the destruction of refineries and re-drill dynamited wells.

The problem of oil shipment is the key to its use. Japan had an oiler fleet comparable to if not greater than that of the United States at the outbreak of the war. Official announcements to date indicate that the American oilers of the Navy and four Japanese naval oilers have been sunk.

Japs Use U. S. Gas. Japanese planes are still using American-made high-octane gas. Shipments in their original containers were sent out from Truk to eastern Japanese outposts.

The Japanese occupied the famous Tarakan fields on the east coast of Borneo, noted for their exceptionally high quality, on January 10. They occupied the Samarinda oil fields north and south of Balikpapan, on the Borneo east coast February 6. The Tarakan fields were subject to a hurried job of destruction, and are believed to be already restored to production. The Samarinda fields' destruction was a more thorough job.

The Japanese moved into the Dutch naval base of Amboina January 31, and obtained control of the Ceram oil fields.

Palembang Fields. On February 14 Japanese parachute troops, a force of 700, dropped from transport planes on the Palembang oil fields, which a large task force landed at the mouth of the Musi river, 50 miles distant. By February 20 Japan had occupied the richest prize in the Indies, the Sumatra oil fields. Later they took Java.

The Sumatra production was 53,000,000 barrels and the Java production 6,200,000.

MacArthur's Fliers Inactive In Solomons

Bombers Confine Activity to Reconnaissance Flights.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia. Tuesday, Oct. 20.—(P)—After a week of heavy blows at Japanese bases in the northern Solomon Islands and New Britain, Allied bombers under the Southwest Pacific Command confined their activity yesterday to reconnaissance flights north of Australia, an Allied communique said today.

This followed Sunday night's four big attacks on a strong Japanese Naval formation at Buin, enemy Naval and Air Base on Bougainville island in the northern Solomons, in which three cruisers and a number of other vessels were believed hit.

The communique, one of the shortest yet issued by General MacArthur's headquarters, said ground fighting in New Guinea continued in the Templeton's Crossing area where Australian troops repulsed three Japanese counterattacks. Templeton's Crossing is about 12 miles south of Kokoda, Japanese base on the northern slope of the Owen Stanley mountains.

For the past few days strengthened Japanese opposition has slowed down the Allied advance in that area.

The communique, one of the shortest yet issued on the New Guinea theater of war, said: "Northwestern Sector—Reconnaissance activity only. "Northeastern sector: "Owen Stanley Area—Fighting continues north of Templeton's Crossing; the enemy counterattacked three times unsuccessfully."

Navy-Marine Grumman Wildcat fighters, one of the bombers shooting down a large Japanese flying boat and the fighters destroying a twin-engine enemy bomber. Twelve Japanese seaplanes, caught at their Rekata Bay base, were strafed and burned.

The communique reported also that Army bombers in the Aleutians had carried out another attack on the Japanese at Kiska Saturday. The four-engine consolidated Liberators dropped 15 tons of bombs on the enemy camp and on shops beached in the harbor, but an overcast sky prevented observations of the results. Anti-aircraft opposition was light, said the communique, and bombers were not opposed by enemy aircraft.

250,000 Jap Troops Reported on Truk

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(INS)—A dispatch from Pearl Harbor to the News Chronicle Monday said it was estimated that 250,000 Japanese troops are concentrated at Truk Island, in the Caroline group, ready to follow up any Japanese naval victory in the Solomons.

Truk Island lies about 1,000 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, scene of the principal action in the Solomons.

The Chronicle dispatch said it was impossible to tell, however, whether the Japanese concentration at Truk meant that the Nipponese would make a major effort to send larger forces to the Solomons or whether it presages a bigger effort elsewhere in the south Pacific.

German Ferry Bearing 1,000 Troops Blasted

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 19.—(P)—The German ferry Deutschland carrying 1,000 Nazi troops on fur-lough was torpedoed late today 10 miles off the Swedish coast and an unknown number were drowned.

The vessel, a train ferry, was able to reach Trelleborg tonight by steering with its propellers. The submarine was of "unknown nationality" but Russian craft have been operating under the Baltic sea for months.

The communique reported also that Army bombers in the Aleutians had carried out another attack on the Japanese at Kiska Saturday. The four-engine consolidated Liberators dropped 15 tons of bombs on the enemy camp and on shops beached in the harbor, but an overcast sky prevented observations of the results. Anti-aircraft opposition was light, said the communique, and bombers were not opposed by enemy aircraft.

London Papers Expect Visit by Mrs. Roosevelt

Gossip Columns Say She Will Be Guest of Queen.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(P)—London newspapers reported in dispatches from New York and in their local gossip columns today that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, is coming to Britain soon at the invitation of Queen Elizabeth.

Authoritative sources did not deny the report, but declined to comment.

(Mrs. Roosevelt, when asked about reports of a London trip at her White House press conference last Wednesday, said "I would like to go if I could be useful. I would have to be very sure of that." She indicated such a trip was just another thing that might occur in the future.)

The newspaper articles said Mrs. Roosevelt would visit the King and Queen—with whom she established a warm friendship during the Royal visit to America in 1939—would meet with the Churchills, make trips to American Army posts and to war factories and would inspect the organizations of the WAACS, WRENS and ATS, the women's auxiliaries of the RAF, Navy and Territorial Service, respectively.

It was recalled that Mrs. Roosevelt said recently that the United States would not get enough women into its war factories until community services, such as restaurants and nurseries, were re-organized along English war-time lines.

Since she has no official position, she would come as a private guest of the King and Queen, not as a state visitor.

ALL TRUCKS MUST CARRY CAPACITY LOADS

WHEN ORDERING COAL:

ORDER IN FULL TRUCK-LOAD LOTS IF POSSIBLE

Extra trips to your house wastes badly needed tires and trucks that must last for the duration of the war.

KEEP A WATCHFUL EYE ON YOUR COAL BIN

Give your dealer sufficient notice—place your order at least two days in advance.

DO NOT SPECIFY A CERTAIN TIME FOR DELIVERY

Deliveries cannot always be made at a specified time or on a specified day. Give your Coal Company at least two days' notice in which to deliver your coal. If you leave your home before the coal arrives, arrange with your neighbor to receive it, as regulations do not permit call backs.

AVOID PLACING RUSH ORDERS

These changes are in the public interest and are inspired by suggestions received from the Office of Defense Transportation to conserve rubber (tires) with the sole purpose of extending the life and usefulness of coal trucks for the duration and to avoid the adoption of far more drastic regulations later.

NEW KIWANIS HEAD—G. Maynard Smith, of Cairo, elected district governor of Georgia Kiwanis at the annual convention yesterday in the Ansley hotel. Smith has been active in Kiwanis for many years. He is shown here with his wife, who also attended the convention.

Cairo Attorney Elected Head of State Kiwanis

Maynard Smith Named District Governor at 23d Convention.

G. Maynard Smith, Cairo attorney, was elected district governor of Kiwanis in Georgia at the 23d annual convention yesterday in the Ansley hotel. He will take office January 1, succeeding F. Fred Kennedy, of Augusta.

A former president of the Cairo club, Smith served last year as district treasurer and also was a member of the international committee on citizenship.

Charles J. Thurmond, Gainesville lawyer, was named district treasurer.

In the feature address of the day, Mrs. J. R. B. Branch, of Macon, a former resident of China, urged more aid for the Chinese.

She added Japan has been trying for two years to make peace with China in order to further new conquest aims.

"The Chinese will never surrender because they have too much character and courage," declared Mrs. Branch, whose husband for 25 years was professor of surgery at a medical school in China. She said the Japanese "rape of Nanking" was without doubt the most savage thing in the history of the world.

Commenting on inflation in China, she said coal was selling for $1,500 a ton in Shanghai; coffee was $50 a pound and chickens sell for $10 each.

A total of 146 delegates from the state's 62 Kiwanis clubs attended the one-day meeting. Speakers included Alan Y. Pope, professor at Georgia Tech; Hamilton Holt, Kiwanis international vice president; and Dr. J. C. Harris, Atlanta Methodist minister.

Commenting on the anti-poll tax bill, he said it was a "bad man" yesterday only to have it blow up in their faces just when success seemed assured.

Armed with a toy pistol that looked like the real McCoy, the pair stuck up a loan shop on Peters street and at cap pistol point tied up Charles Weiner, of 408 Eighth street, N. E., and Elliott Rubin, 570 Parkway drive, N. E., in true "bad man" style.

Then they looted the shop of 10 pistols (the real McCoy's valued at $125; a knife, $1; 30 cartridges, $2, and four watches, value, $40).

Rubin worked his ropes loose as the "bad men" left the store and chased them. He overtook the pair—listed as Charles Aaron Mitchell, of a Houston street address, and Hayes Hamm, of Hilliard street, and at gun point (real) held them until police arrived.

Both youths are booked at police headquarters on suspicion of robbery.

Passersby ran to his aid, and an ambulance took him to a hospital. "It was fine that you came so quickly," the King was quoted as telling the driver. "I am not 18 any longer, and the fall was rather heavy."

His face was smeared with blood from cuts behind his left ear and on his lips, but it was said he smoked a cigarette while his head was bandaged.

Physicians said there was no fracture of the skull nor sign of concussion.

Crown Prince Frederik was surrounded by hundreds of persons who saw him crossing a square before the palace later. He assured them that all was well.

The crown prince and princess drove together to the hospital, and the queen, who was away from Copenhagen, returned to the city.

Late today the Danish radio broadcast this communique: "His Majesty the King has spent a quiet afternoon except for some periods when he was in pain. His temperature is 100.2."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee voted, 8 to 4, today to delay action for another week on legislation to outlaw collection of poll taxes as a prerequisite for voting.

The action was taken over the vigorous opposition of Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska.

Chairman Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, told reporters he thought there was little prospect for senate action on the bill before the November election.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Legislation to provide punishment, up to and including the death penalty, for hostile acts against the United States was introduced today by Chairman Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, of the Senate Judiciary Committee on recommendation of the attorney general.

Van Nuys declared that "serious gaps" existed in the array of legal weapons available for use against enemies inside the country.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The first United States troops other than air force units have arrived at Damascus, the dispatch said. "Other contingents are expected. More ground crews of the United States Air Forces are continually arriving and taking over more airdromes in Syria and Lebanon."

Another instance of the Berlin radio's campaign to report in detail alleged movements of United Nations forces, the purpose of which remains obscure, was a transoceanic dispatch datelined Ankara reporting American troops in Damascus, Syria.

"The first United States troops other than air force units have arrived at Damascus," the dispatch said. "Other contingents are expected. More ground crews of the United States Air Forces are continually arriving and taking over more airdromes in Syria and Lebanon."

ROME, Ga., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The regular farmers' poultry sale for this month will be held at Martin Thursday and at Toccoa Friday, both sales beginning at 8:30 in the morning and lasting until 12:30 p. m., according to O. G. Atrial, Stephens county agent.

The Tennessee Egg Company was the successful bidder on the sales.

Commenting on the anti-poll tax bill, he said it was a "bad man" yesterday only to have it blow up in their faces just when success seemed assured.

Useless To Win If Our Cause Is Lost--FDR

As 4,000 volunteer workers prepared this week to launch the 20th annual Community Fund Appeal to meet wartime needs of the Atlanta area, a message from President Roosevelt made clear the responsibility of local communities to keep efficient their agencies of human service.

In a message to Community Funds everywhere, the President said:

"It is useless to win battles if the cause for which we fought those battles is lost."

The President was discussing the things the Community Fund stands for—sanctity of homes, the right of children to health and happiness and protection, the obligation to provide peace and security for the aged and handicapped.

Speakers and volunteer leaders in all the nine divisions of the Appeal army stressed yesterday the reality of the minimum goal of $635,099 which is being sought this year. The increase over last year was made necessary by the new demands created by the war.

In a letter answering specific questions about the increased goal this year, Boyce M. Edens, director-secretary of the fund, said:

"The war is laying a heavy burden on most of the 32 member agencies. We have actual statistics and facts showing the increased demands for service. Some agencies have increased their services as much as 100 per cent. War has raised new problems for almost everyone, and increased their reliance on community welfare agencies for help."

"Men are going into the armed services or leaving homes for production jobs. Many women are going into war jobs or replacing men in business and industry. This puts a great strain on homes, leaves many children unprotected. For the younger children, the community must provide day nursery care; for the older children recreation and morale building services."

"There are more neglected and dependent children. Tuberculosis and other sickness has increased and there is a heavier load on the clinics. Some of the agencies are meeting new demands for service—namely the Travelers Aid. Then, too, we have taken in a new agency this year—the central branch of the Y. M. C. A."

"I think everyone can understand, from these facts, the increased need. I think further, that we should have confidence and faith in the more than 700 leading men and women who studied the need for months before they recommended the goal of this Appeal. These people, who serve voluntarily at great personal sacrifice and with great sincerity, made this study and said that the need was here and was very real."

Opening a full week of meetings at which the various divisions of the Appeal organization get under way, more than 800 women, representing all sections, gather today at the Atlanta Athletic Club to receive final instructions. They are led by Mrs. Murdoch Equen and Mrs. J. C. Harris Jr.

The meeting will be held in two sections, one starting at 11:30 and the other at 1:30 o'clock. Both groups will have lunch at 12:30.

Generals Seen Planning Drive Against Burma

London Speculates Over Auchinleck-Wavell Conference.

By NOLAN NORGAARD.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Increasing speculation over the possibility of a swift Allied thrust into Burma was heard in London tonight because of the report that General Sir Claude Auchinleck, now at New Delhi with both General Sir Archibald P. Wavell and United States Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell, will receive an important assignment.

Auchinleck was succeeded as Middle East commander last August by General Sir Harold Alexander, and there has been no announcement since that time of his new duties. Today military quarters in London disclaimed knowledge of an impending eastern appointment for "The Auk," but it was agreed generally that he possesses qualifications useful in preparing an assault which would be aimed primarily at reopening the Burma Road into China.

Generals Auchinleck and Stilwell reached New Delhi soon after General Wavell had concluded a tour of inspection which took him across the Burma frontier. It was assumed that their discussions concerned integration of British, Indian, United States and Chinese effectives for the eventual reconquest.

During the months when he was general officer commanding in India before taking over the Middle East command from Wavell, Auchinleck won unprecedented popularity among Indians. This was enhanced by his abolishment of the old distinction between the so-called martial and non-martial classes.

Auchinleck shares with Wavell the broadest acquaintance of the whole Indian military scene. He spent a decade in India before the war, and became deputy chief of staff at Indian army headquarters.

A succession of dispatches from India have told of the impatience among Allied troops to attack the Japanese. Probably none is more eager for the new campaign, especially now that the monsoon is ending, than the phin-spoken General Stilwell, who came out of Burma afire with the last of the troops.

Today, speaking in Rawalpindi, the viceroy of India, Lord Linlithgow, said: "Soon we shall throw the enemy and it will be a mighty fall."

Pace Forestalls Action

On Canal Bonus Bill

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Early adjournment of the house forestalled consideration today of a senate-approved bill for payment of bonuses to civilians employed in construction of the Panama Canal 30 years ago.

When the bill was brought up Representative Pace, Democrat, Georgia, made a point that there was no quorum. Thereupon, Representative Cooper, Democrat, Tennessee, moved that the house adjourn, and his motion was carried.

Pace said later he thought that the bill would set a precedent that he would like "to look into" before action was taken.

Draft Brings Lower Voting Age Proposal

Senate To Debate Thursday on Conscription 18-19 Youths.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The senate received today a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the voting age from 21 to 18 as it decided to begin debate Thursday on house-approved legislation to subject 18- and 19-year-old men to the military draft.

Introducing the proposed amendment, Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, declared that his purpose was to give the privilege of the ballot to men who would be inducted into the fighting forces under the pending bill. The amendment would require ratification by three-fourths of the states, after approval by congress, before it could become effective.

"If young men of 18 are to be drafted to fight for their country," Vandenberg declared, "they should be able to vote for the kind of government the country is to have."

The wording of the Vandenberg amendment would make it apply to "citizens" of the lower age group, thereby making it applicable to girls as well as youths.

Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, said he had agreed with McNary, of Oregon, that debate on the draft bill would not start until Thursday.

McNary said a number of senators had been out of town on the understanding that no legislation of importance would be taken up immediately.

Barkley told reporters he expected little opposition to the bill.

Owners of Truck Fleets Warned

Operators of fleets of commercial vehicles garaged in more than one locality were warned yesterday that their home offices cannot make blanket applications for certificates of war necessity, which will enable them to continue operation after November 15.

"Applications must be filed by operating units," John G. Caley, regional manager of the Office of Defense Transportation's motor transport division, said. "If a Michigan firm has trucks operating out of Atlanta, application for the trucks operating here must be made in Atlanta," he pointed out. It will be "just too bad" if certificates are not obtained by the deadline, regardless of whether the applications are made improperly or not made at all, he said.

Benny Scraps Old Maxwell—WPB's Bray Proud of Stunt

The nation's No. 1 jalopy—your couldn't buy it—has been donated to the newspapers' scrap drive all because Jim Bray, regional War Production Board chief of the jalopy division, had an idea.

Bray, who has his eye on 40,000 old automobiles which are clogging up and down Georgia's highways, didn't pull any punches when he was looking around for a subject to focus interest on jalopies.

He went after Jack Benny's old Maxwell—and he got it, too.

The radio star announced the donation to the scrap heap on a recent program. Now the March of Time is going to dramatize the event Thursday night.

supervisor, a position filled by Paul D. West, former principal of Russell High School upon his promotion. Roy Drukenmiller succeeded West at Russell High and John G. Lewis succeeded Drukenmiller as principal of Hapeville High.

West, Drukenmiller and Lewis appeared before the board to state that none of them had been parties to any agreement to accept demotion in the event of Wells' election. All pledged their loyalty to the system. West offered to relinquish his position as supervisor to make way for Walker, if the board found for him a position comparable to that he had held at Russell High.

Wells said last night, "I have been constantly besieged by parents and teachers and others to return to the school system. Since it is the unanimous desire of the board and Mr. Walker that I return, I shall be glad to resume my position. Of course, as there is a great shortage of teachers in the system, there will be no question of Mr. Walker being taken care of."

"My only motive in resigning in June was to make the race for Congress, and, being an elective officer, I could not take a leave of absence without pay. I appreciate the generous attitude both of the board and Mr. Walker."

Wells was elected superintendent in 1940 for a four-year term beginning January 1, 1941.

Buck Itching To Bring Japs Back Not Alive

Famed Animal Captor Offers Jungle Lore To Aid Army.

By KEELER McCARTNEY.

Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck is anxious to make one more trip into the jungles of this time in quest of that slant-eyed, two-legged elusive creature commonly known as a Jap.

Buck, whose animal hunting expeditions were cut short a couple of years ago by the war, arrived here yesterday. He will speak at 8 o'clock tonight in the Georgia Tech auditorium on his experiences in 30 years of capturing dangerous game in unexplored country.

"I sold out my interests in wild animals after the New York World's Fair because I felt that all of us soon would be in the war," Buck said.

"Then I volunteered my services to the War Department right after Pearl Harbor, thinking that I would be of service in the Malaya campaign."

Washington Too Slow.

"Washington didn't get around to acting on the application though I guess the British gave way in the jungles so rapidly that my knowledge wouldn't have done much good."

Right now Buck is spending his time on a lecture tour and hoping that the War Department will reconsider his application.

"We've got to take back that country," he declared.

In his hunts for big game, Buck has led native expeditions over most of Burma, India, Malaya and New Guinea. He speaks Malayan fluently and has enough command of other tribal languages "to ask for what I want."

His travels have carried him over almost every foot of the Owen Stanley mountains, where the Australians and Americans are beating back a Japanese thrust.

Natives Are "Nice."

Natives of New Guinea are "very nice," he added, "if you know how to handle them." Buck's formula for dealing with tribesmen, including the head hunters that inhabit the interior of New Guinea, is "let them know you are master and treat them well."

"Most of the natives were friendly on my last trip through that section," he said. "However, the Japs were already at work then with their propaganda of 'Asia for the Asiatics.'"

Buck admitted he was "too old to wield a sword" or stand the gaff of a fighting man. But he believes the knowledge he has of jungle life, the languages of the natives, the terrain, etc., will be valuable to the Allies when they retake the jungle country.

His headquarters at Singapore, where he outfitted his men for eight to 12 months' trips in search for elephants, tigers, pythons and the like, are now in the hands of the Japanese.

Began on Farm.

Buck, now greying around the temples, started his wild game career on his father's farm in west Texas. He trapped red birds, desert animals and rattlesnakes, storing the furs in his father's barn and studying their habits.

In 1911, he made his first game-hunting expedition into Brazil. From there, his hobby-profession carried him into the most remote sections of the world, accompanied by a crew of trained jungle natives.

One of the most dangerous animals Buck has encountered, he said, was the dread black leopard found in the jungles of Malaya and India and sometimes in Africa. He said from two to three months is necessary to build a corral for capturing elephants.

A mountain lion, a 30-foot python or a Bengal tiger are all the same to Buck. "They're just like those jungle natives," he smiled. "nice enough if you know how to handle them."

ONE WORD MORE

Bargain in Car; Except It Was Devoid of Tires

"Have you found a stray corset in your car?" she inquired. "It was pinching me and I managed to get out of it and then forgot it." And all was well.

Lovely Highways

A few afternoons ago I took a trip up to Rome and back, for no particular reason except the ride was free and the weather fine and the company good.

It was the first time I'd been out of Fulton county—except for an occasional excursion into the edge of DeKalb—in a year. And I am typing this chapter of my life and adventures to inform other gasless and tireless shut-ins about the conditions prevailing in the outside world.

Firstly, the rented car was equipped with a governor which held it down to 40 m. p. h. Which was irksome in the extreme, because we seemed almost to be crawling. Secondly, to utilize the importance of conserving rubber, but this was rented rubber and I had hoped the man at the wheel would give us a taste of the grand old 65 to 70.

Finally, the highway was as lonely as a front living room while drinks are being mixed in the kitchen. There was an occasional truck, a few passenger cars—and a vast expanse of vacant land, the only thing coming a nation of stay-at-homes.

Here's one from Louie Morris' Hartwell Sun, and I don't know where he got it. It appears that Hitler and Goering were discussing the food situation.

"We have enough to last 10 years," said Goering.

"Fine," returned the Fuehrer. "I must announce that to my loyal people."

"The people?" said Goering.

"Who said anything about the people? I mean 10 years' food for you and me."

Good gawd, isn't it? But don't let it fool you.

One of the best places to search for junk, according to the Christian Science Monitor, is under the cushions of the family car. The Monitor reports a scout who explored those depths and found 17 cents, his wife's missing sun glasses, his own dog license, one-and-one-half pairs of gloves, eight sticks of chewing gum, a brass lipstick holder and 172 hairpins.

stuck under a cushion and I was surprised to find that I thought it was time to investigate the realm beneath the cushions of our car. Yet I approach the venture with fear.

I shall never forget the time my better half lifted a cushion and found, just behind it, where it had slipped and slid, a feminine corset. How are you going to explain a situation like that? Especially if it is a total surprise. My life had been as innocent as a monk's in a monastery, but try to prove that! There was the corset, pink and plump. And it was true that I'd taken the car out a couple of times, on professional missions.

My life and reputation were saved and the car was restored to normalcy when a woman friend of my wife called up. With her husband she had accom-

"Chollie, ain't that about as fine a thing as you've ever seen at Channel Cat Crossin' in all these years?" remarked Marsh Mullins as they watched the boys unloading scrap from their wagons in front of the store Saturday afternoon.
"Chollie smiled. "I didn't dream there was much old metal in these mountains," he said. "I can't get out there to see it closely, but it looks like from here that they must have all the worn-out tools, axes and rakes and shovels in the county. And I wish you would look at the pile of old horse and mule shoes. And even the old syrup kettles. How much do you figger that pile of stuff would weigh, Marsh?"
Marsh guessed there was five tons. Chollie doubled the guess. He pointed out the old gins, two Gathering up the scrap had been going on for two or three weeks, the school children starting it, and the women gradually joining it. It had been agreed that all the scrap in the community would be piled up in front of the store, since the big trucks that would haul it could stay on the paved highway. The women had put in their full share of the work, and had broken up pieces of their cook stoves. It was a grand response.

The telephone rang. Miss Sally came out on the porch of the store to announce that the trucks would be there Saturday afternoon, the message indicating that it would be expected that there would be a crowd gathered about the store on Saturday afternoon to help load the scrap.

"O Marsh, would yer cum back here or minnit?"

store, or? He went to the back of the store, and Cas took him into the enclosed backyard between the tenement house and the warehouse, and showed him a big pile of scrap that he had collected back there. And Cas went on to explain that he had been working for two weeks to get up this scrap, but he would find about the store and about his place and Chollie's place. He had decided that since Chollie was paralyzed and could not have any part in the effort to save himself, he would get up this pile of refuse and surplus, and announce that it was Chollie's contribution to the war effort. 'Old Marsh Mullins couldn't say a word. His lips quivered, and down his wrinkled face a hot tear rolled its way through his week-old beard.

The big trucks arrived, and all the folks in the community were here. Cas quietly explained to one of the drivers what he wanted, and the big truck backed into the yard. Chollie wanted to know what they were all going back here for. Marsh Mullins waited until the right moment, and rolled Chollie through the store to the open back door. On top of the big pile of scrap was this sign: "Chollie's gift to Uncle Sam."

The truth about United States planes, OWI said, lies between two extreme viewpoints. One, that they are the best in the world; the other, that British, German and Japanese planes are superior.

The United States aircraft industry and the armed services were said to be "in an orderly ferment of developing specialized aircraft of high, in some cases sensational, promise of battle performance." Some of these actually are flying and production of others has begun.

Explaining that it sought to dispel confusion over the planes, OWI gave the following summary: 1. The Navy entered the war with considerable quantities of aircraft not of the latest type, and unquestionably suffered losses that could have been avoided had latest equipment been available. But secret battle reports show that the latest floating-base aircraft, when compared plane for plane with those of other navies, are superior in all types.

2. In Pacific areas, Army flying equipment hardly can be said to have had a fair trial in the early days of the war. The disruption caused by the surprise Jap attack and the necessity of retreating to inadequate bases imposed conditions that no aircraft could meet fully. Yet in the Pacific area, the overall battle score of Army aircraft has been better than the enemy's.

This is not to say could not have been better still. If the services had been more alert for Jap treachery or had more accurately forecast performance and tactics of Japanese aircraft, if they had fully prepared for early hostilities with Japan, the showing would have been immeasurably better. If necessary slow processing of better types could have been speeded, our aircraft in the Pacific, especially fighters, would have been better fitted. Even our bombers, performing superbly in retreat, could have done better if the past had given them a chance.

3. In the European theater, our newest fighters have not been fully tried up to now. Yet appraisal of our fighter types—the Bell P-39 and the Curtiss P-40—compels the conclusion that they are not right for operation under today's high-altitude tactics in England. Both are outclassed in the high-altitude field by the British Spitfire and the German Messerschmitt 109 and Focke-Wulf 190. But it is one of the apparent paradoxes of aircraft performance that the P-39 has proved a splendid weapon on the Russian and Aleutian fronts, and the P-40 is a first line fighter in Egypt, and able to slug it out with the Messerschmitt 109 there on substantially even terms. This is due to the peculiarities of the tactical situations in these theaters.

Facts about America's fighting planes as described today by the Office of War Information follows:

Fighters

Curtiss P-40. Single-engine, liquid-cooled. Most discussed of all United States combat aircraft, this fighter has gone through six major type changes (from P-40A to P-40F). Types now in wide use are the "P" (Kittyhawk) and "F" (Warhawk). Substantially improved through each change, it has the virtues of heavy hitting power, excellent armor, high diving speed, and leakproof tanks common to all United States combat aircraft. Against the Zero it has proved on average to be superior. The Zero's advantages of fast climb, great maneuverability, and better ceiling are offset by its vulnerability and the fact that when a Zero goes down its pilot almost always goes down with it. He is riding a lightly built aircraft, highly inflammable—since it has no leakproofing and is without armor protection. It is this poorly protected Zero fighter that American pilots prefer. But most P-40 pilots frankly say that they would like more altitude, if they could still maintain their advantages of superior firepower and protection.

Bell P-39 (Airacobra). Single-engine, liquid-cooled. A first line fighter in the criticism heaped on the P-40, the P-39 has roughly the same limitations and the same positive virtues. Developments now being made in this design give the P-39 a much improved performance while retaining all its virtues, including splendid visibility for the pilot in missions co-operating with ground troops. Armed with a cannon as well as machineguns, it is also a powerful ground-strafing craft.

North American P-51 (Mustang). Single-engine, liquid-cooled. Newest of the Allison-powered United States pursuits, the P-51 has been quietly developed. It did not come prominently into public notice until the British had used it in the raid on Dieppe. One of the fastest fighters in the world, it has roughly the same limitations on altitude performance of other single-engine Allison craft. Improvement in the power plant and other technical changes promised.

ise a sensational improvement in the altitude performance of this airplane.

Lockheed P-38 (Lightning).

A two-engine, liquid-cooled pursuit plane, the P-38 has so far had only limited tests in action, notably in the Aleutians. Its performance has been brilliant. Turbo-supercharged, it has excellent high altitude performance. Its long range (exceeding the range of the Spitfire, Messerschmitt 109 and Focke-Wulf 190) and its great firepower give it real promise as an escort to our high-altitude bombers. At its best altitude it is one of the world's fastest fighting aircraft. Nevertheless, constant improvements are being made.

Republic P-47 (Thunderbolt). Powered by one of the largest United States air-cooled engines, the P-47 has been thoroughly tested, is in service and in production. It is turbo-supercharged, heavily armed, and has a greater high speed than the P-38 at extreme altitudes. Its trial by battle is not far off.

Grumman F-4F (Wildcat). The Navy's standard fighter, as of today, the F-4F is unquestionably the best carrier fighter now in battle service. Powered with an air-cooled engine, with two-speed supercharger, it has shown altitude performance that comes close to the Zero. Its lower rate of climb and maneuverability are offset by its characteristically heavy armor and armament. Designed primarily for carrier work, it has folding wings and compact storage. Like most such specialized installations, this feature steps up the weight of the F-4F by 5 per cent and thus cuts down slightly on its performance. The sacrifice is heavily overbalanced by the fact that it increases a given carrier's complement of fighters by 50 per cent.

In the Solomon Islands, the F-4F's operation against Japanese fighters and bombers have been destructive and in many encounters decisive. Yet superior replacements for the F-4F are already in production.

Heavy Bombers

Boeing B-17 (Flying Fortress). A tried and thoroughly tested model with an unequalled combat record (four engines, air-cooled turbo-supercharged), the B-17 is essentially a high-altitude, long-range bomber designed for precision destruction of restricted targets at great ranges. Often compared, sometimes unfavorably, with the British Lancaster, it is not in the same category. While it is primarily designed for day bombing, it is easily convertible in the field for night bombing at lower altitudes and shorter ranges, with greater loads. This dual function is not possible with the specially designed, slower night bombers. The Lancaster is designed for night bombing, hence has less altitude and speed performance, but is capable of carrying a heavier bomb load on short and middle distance missions. In its armament equipment, the B-17 has been most inaccurately characterized as deficient. The fact is that it is one of the most heavily armed bombers in the world. It has indicated by its work in the Pacific and over Europe as well, that it can carry out high altitude day-bombing missions under the protection of its own guns and with out fighter escort. Gunners in Flying Fortresses have shown that its destructive, high-rate 50 caliber machineguns have greatly extended the effective range of the bomber's defensive fire.

Consolidated B-24 (Liberator). Another turbo-motored, air-cooled bomber, turbo-supercharged like the B-17 and capable of operation at high altitudes and over great ranges for high-accuracy bombing missions. In the Pacific, in northern Africa, Europe, and the Aleutians the B-24 has shown itself a topflight performer, capable of duplication of the B-17's record.

Medium and Light Bombers
North American B-25 (Mitchell). A battle-tested, two-engine, air-cooled aircraft of speed, long range and good load carrying characteristics, chiefly dramatized for the United States' public by the raid on Tokyo. No airplane of the same class in friendly or enemy air forces is known to equal it.

Martin B-26 (Marian). Two engines, air-cooled. This is also a battle-tested plane in general comparable with the characteristics and performance of the B-25. No nation but the United States, so far as is known, has so efficient a plane in its class.

Douglas A-20 (Boston or Havoc). A light (two-engine, air-cooled) bomber widely used by the British in the European and Egyptian theaters. Flexible in its performance, it has also been employed with modifications as a heavy fighter. It is unquestionably one of the best in its class.

Douglas SBD (Devastator). (Army counterpart A-24). The Navy's standard torpedo bomber, dive bomber (single-engine, air-cooled), this craft is the best in the world in its category. As a land-based craft it may find its equal or even its superior in the Germans' latest Dornier and Junkers multi-motored craft. It will shortly be supplemented by a newer design now in production.

Douglas TBD (Devastator). The Navy's standard torpedo bomber when we entered the war, this single-engine, air-cooled aircraft was as good as the best in service in the Navy. Yet development already under way soon caught up with it and it is being replaced by the

Grumman TBF (Avenger). Single-engine, air-cooled. This plane made its battle debut at Midway. A bigger, more powerful and in all respects more advanced aircraft, the TBF is the best carrier-based torpedo plane so far seen in action in the war.

Patrol, Reconnaissance And Miscellaneous

In this field, United States development has been satisfactory in quality. The Navy's patrol bombers are the equals of any in the world, and in range (the basic necessity of the work of such craft) they are probably superior. One of the Navy's types, the famous PBV has been criticized for lack of speed. Such craft are not built for speed but for ability to stay long hours in the air and to land on rough water for refueling and servicing. In these capabilities the PBV is a superior aircraft. Its employment, however, is now overshadowed by later types, notably the new Consolidated and Martin patrol boats.

In the Army Air Forces the requirements of a plane for every task, have brought into the military field many aircraft not mentioned in the foregoing summary. They range from troop carriers and transports down to the "Grasshopper" planes for liaison, fine artillery fire adjustment, etc. These types are very good, on the average, and many of the newer craft are definitely superior to comparable equipment in other air forces. Rising production in this general category should give the United States Air Forces the best equipment of this kind in the world.

CRASH VICTIMS. LAGRANGE, Ga., Oct. 19.—Eight persons are in City-County Hospital here as a result of a collision of two automobiles, some of them seriously hurt. The wreck, occurring at night at bend in a country road, was between a car with one occupant and another car with 11 passengers, seven of whom had to be hospitalized. Victims' ages range from 18 months to middle age. No one was killed.

Theft of Navy Plans Averted By Roosevelt

FBI Assistant Director in Talk Here Lauds Foresight.

Hugh H. Clegg, assistant director of the FBI, yesterday said that the foresight of the President was responsible for preventing the theft of plans for the Navy's most important secret weapon, and for the fact that there has not been a single instance of foreign-inspired sabotage since the beginning of the war.

He spoke at the Rotary Club luncheon on the subject "The FBI and the War."

The assistant director outlined the steps through which the FBI protects war materials on their journey from the farm, the mine and the forest, through the factory and assembly plant to the time they are turned over to the armed forces, and declared that only through the vigilance and co-operation of the average citizen can sabotage and espionage be prevented.

In charge of the FBI's training program, he outlined the streamlining of the activities of the bureau by the President and J. Edgar Hoover prior to the declaration of war, which made it possible for more dangerous enemy agents to be arrested in the 48 hours following Pearl Harbor than the entire number apprehended during the first year of the war.

The streamlining process and the investigation of persons considered dangerous long before the outbreak of war made possible the apprehension of the eight saboteurs recently arrested before they could commit a single destructive act and resulted in the conviction of all 33 members of a German espionage ring, whose every activity was observed and controlled by FBI agents, some of whom were entrenched in the highest positions in the ring.

While Gerlick was having pictures taken, he asked the gorilla if he wanted a drink of water. Gargantua actually looked as if he was grinning and nodding his head. "Sorta knew this guy even if he was wearing a different kind of uniform."

Gerlick is planning on visiting Gargantua every day the circus is here. He'll be out at the night shows, because he's learning things in school at the Ordnance Motor Base in the daytime. He's got to-night and tomorrow night to visit the super-gorilla while the circus gives two shows here today and two tomorrow.

"Keep 'Em Rollin'.. or Else!"
says grandpappy engine 2414 to a 1942 Santa Fe Freight Diesel

"Back in '98, in the Spanish-American War," reminisces little Old-Timer 2414, "20 cars was an average-length freight train. By World War I, we'd upped our Santa Fe freights to an average 35.9 cars. Not bad railroadin', that."

"Not bad is right," answers the big new freight Diesel, "but not good enough for World War II. Now we've stretched 'em out another 41%, to 50.9 cars, and those cars are bigger, loaded heavier, and rolling farther and faster."

"Good work, son," says Old-Timer. "Yours is the BIG war job. Keep 'em rollin'—or else!"

DAILY THE LOAD INCREASES
To date, the railroads have met 100% the staggering demands born of this global war. Many have helped make that record possible—the War Department, the Office of Defense Transportation, civilian shippers and travelers everywhere.

In the first six months of 1942, with 25% fewer locomotives, the Santa Fe moved 94% more freight ton-miles and 27% more military and civilian passenger miles than in the first six months of 1918, in World War I.

Daily the load increases. No man knows what the peak will be. We do know there is a limit to the performance that can be squeezed out of existing equipment.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

What It Takes Daring young men—and women—fly through the air with the greatest of ease, risk their necks in breath-taking performances under the big top.

BUT top billing is given to a silly gorilla, and a dubious mate, whose contributions to the show consist of sitting or lying or waddling on the floor of a cage.

(Editor's note: That Barnum knew human nature, all right.)

Far be it from me to bring up an ape in connection with football, but it often happens that the least advertised performers are those on whom a team most depends for success.

(A circus with only a big gorilla to offer would soon fold its tents and silently steal away, a la Omar Khayyam, or some other Arab.)

It isn't often that a football line is featured in a football game. Usually, the glory is awarded some twinkling back who, behind fine blocking, carried the ball across the goal line and reaped the headlines as a result.

This is not to take any credit at all away from the big-name backs who normally attract the customers; it simply is to give a little credit to the other boys whose efforts are vital to a team's success.

Alabama's line, from end to end, and line reserves settled the issue against Tennessee—although a back finally ran for a touchdown. This was unheralded Bobby Tom Jenkins, sophomore, who led the nation's scorers as a prep star at Talladega High school.

As time goes on, the Georgia-Alabama game will be hailed as a meeting of a powerful Crimson Tide forewall and the Bulldogs' scintillating array of backs. And this will put the burden of proof on the Georgia line.

As Georgia's line goes against the Tide, so goes Georgia.

Soldiers Rally Soldiers, undoubtedly from the middle west, are rallying to the support of the fellow service man who recently took issue with an observation that southern teams are, on the whole, superior to football teams of any other section this season.

The letter, from Spence Field, is signed by four ardent supporters of football as played in the mid-west, and it is contended that imported players provide the strength of most of the teams. (They must know where the best football is played, eh fellows?)

The men from Spence Field fire away as follows:

"75th Base Hq. & AB SQ., Spence Field, Moultrie, Ga.

"October 18, 1942.

"Dear Mr. Troy: "Speaking of your comment on today's article on southern football teams in comparison with those of other sections of the country, we'd like to offer a few pointers on which I do not believe you are very well familiar with.

"You claim that the southern teams are the best in the nation, year in and year out. As far as the south goes, yes, we'll agree with you. The reason is that the south never plays anybody who is considered any real competition. You claim that you can pick 12 teams out of the south and whip any other 12 teams in the country. Who does the south play that is considered real opposition? For one thing the south plays among itself and does not really meet the opposition that is found in the midwest. It is also well known that for years coaches of southern schools have been subsidizing players from regional states to use in their highly-lauded eleven. Practically all, if not all, of the players nominated as All-Americans, from the south, originally migrate from other parts of the country, especially the midwest.

"Another thing, the south has never had an All-American that could carry 'Whizzer' White's shoes. All of the greatest ball toters of all time have been usually from the midwest and hardly ever from the south. As far as the bowls are concerned, why is it that hardly ever are teams picked to play in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena? Sure southern teams play in the various bowls, but who do they play? It isn't the midwest teams, but it is southern teams. "We certainly agree with the soldier who wrote you, that Mr. Williamson has never seen a game. Comparing Sinkwich with Whizzer White, I don't believe that Sinkwich could sit on the same bench with White. I trust that this letter is not too abrupt but we couldn't help but answer after your challenge in today's Constitution.

"Very truly yours, "K. CRUNKLETON, E. GARRETT, MICHAEL ORESICK, B. GOMEZ."

Figures show a bit of unfairness to Sinkwich. With a broken jaw he gained, as the nation's leader, 1,103 yards. ONLY 19 short of White's all-time mark. And Sinkwich broke the record of Jim Reynolds, of Oklahoma (1940) in the number of times he carried the ball on rushes. He ran 209 times against Reynolds' 202. His passes gained over 700 yards.

Midwestern teams are notorious for playing one another and shun bowl games for no substantial reason. In inter-sectional competition this year, Dixie elevens have humbled Notre Dame, Southern California, Fordham, Colgate, Duquesne, Pennsylvania and Harvard.

Sentiment Lamar Ball, our magazine editor, overheard this one Saturday afternoon at Grant Field—

"Why does Georgia Tech play Davidson?" a fellow asked a friend.

"For sentimental reasons, I suppose," the friend responded; "there is quite a bit of feeling on Tech's part for Davidson. You see, Buck Flowers played his first year there."

It was in the days when players were not restricted. There were no rules against transfers. "Tech persuaded Flowers to join the Jackets, and that's the only time Davidson ever threatened Tech," Ball quipped.

Strong Vidalia Gridders Down Metter Team, 25-6

VIDALIA, Ga., Oct. 19.—The Vidalia High grid warriors overpowered the improved Metter High eleven, 25-6, in the first game of the season for the home team at Metter.

Spectacular running and passing by Fire Ball "Flat Foots" Col-

son for the Vidalia team kept the large crowd on edge throughout.

The Vidalia forward wall was practically bomb proof. Vidalia will play in Douglas next Friday.

Southeastern Powerhouses Dominate Early Season Grid Play.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.

Alabama's Red Tide climbed out on top of the heap as the No. 1 team of the nation, including the Service teams, by blanking Tennessee 8-0 Saturday to continue its undefeated and untied record. Coach Frank Thomas' Tide played under wraps in two of its four games—beating Southwestern Louisiana, 54 to 0, and Pensacola Preflighters, 27 to 0. But it showed its power with a 21-to-6 triumph over Mississippi State—pre-season Southeastern Conference favorite, and shutting out Tennessee last weekend.

That victory over Mississippi State looks more impressive this week, after the Mississippians' 33-to-0 blanking of Vanderbilt last Saturday—the third worst defeat in 25 years for the Commodores. True, the Staters lost the previous week in a big upset to Louisiana State, 16 to 6, but they depended too much in that game on their great back, Blondie Black. Black played that game ill with influenza and running fever.

Despite that close 7-6 decision over Kentucky the first week of the 1942 season, Georgia rates No. 2 in the nation. Any football team that can swamp the Tulane Green wave 40-0, even when the Wave has an off-day, establishes a remarkable precedent. The score of Coach Wallace Butts' Georgia Bulldogs have been impressive, aside from that against Kentucky. Unusual though it may be to have two teams from the same state among the first 10 teams of the nation, undefeated and untied, Georgia Tech rates right under Georgia as No. 3. There's no consistent ignoring of the fact that the Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech downed Notre Dame, 13 to 6, and that on the home field of the Irish.

Coach Frank Leahy's Fighting Irish come next at No. 4, with one tie and the one-touchdown loss to Georgia Tech against them. The tie was no disgrace, because it was the next team (No. 5), Wisconsin, which has the same rating of 97.0. The accolade must be handed to Notre Dame for its 28-to-0 rout of Iowa's Blarney's Iowa Preflighters—probably the greatest aggregation of professionals and former All-Americans ever assembled.

The Williamson System clicked last week for a remarkable list of predictions on many college football games. "Sweet" is the word for calling: Alabama over Tennessee; Boston College 7, North Carolina Pre-Flighters 6; U. C. L. A. 21, California 0; Denver 17, Wyoming 14; Dartmouth 14, Harvard 12; Duke 27, Wake Forest 23; Michigan 7, Santa Clara 7; Oregon State 0; Texas Christian 7, Texas Aggies 2; and Wisconsin 13, Great Lakes 7. In 178 games reported, including late returns from the previous week, there were only 23 upsets and five upsetting ties. That gave Williamson System prediction record for last week of 85.7 per cent correct.

Hassett Marries N. Y. Dancer

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—(AP)—John A. (Buddy) Hassett, first baseman for the New York Yankees baseball team, was honeymooning today with his bride, the former Miss Veronica Macklin, dancer at the Hollywood restaurant, New York.

The couple was married yesterday at St. Patrick's R. C. church by the Rev. Bartholomew Kilcain, a friend of the bride's family. Friends said they had met five years ago and had been "keeping steady company" for two years.

FORMER TIDESMEN IN NAVY—Three former Alabama football greats, now naval officers, Millard "Dixie" Howell (left), Noah Langdale Jr. (center), and Jimmy Hitchcock Jr., meet on the grounds of the United States Preflight School at Athens, where they have just reported for duty to assist in the physical conditioning of Uncle Sam's future naval aviators. Lieutenant (j.g.) Howell, All-American Tide backfield ace in 1934, who starred in the Rose Bowl, was head football coach at Arizona State Teachers College at Tempe before entering the Navy. Ensign Langdale had been serving as tackle coach at Alabama after graduating last year. A native of Valdosta, Ga., Langdale won All-Conference football honors in 1940. Lieutenant (j.g.) Hitchcock, All-American football and baseball star at Auburn, 1932-33, had been assistant football coach at Auburn since 1933 and head baseball coach last year.

Whirly May Tackle Alsab Again Saturday

By DONALD SANDERS.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Whirlaway, the turf's leading money winner of all time, today was assigned to Saturday's renewal of the $15,000-added Washington Handicap, which may give him an opportunity to even the score with Alsab.

Racing Secretary John P. Turner, announcing weights for the mile and a quarter event today, rated the long-tailed speedster from the Calumet Farm Stable at Warren Wright four pounds over the scale, and assigned Alsab 123 pounds, three above scale.

At that, Whirly will have a two-pound advantage over his last effort, when he was beaten by Mrs. Sabath's three-year-old and by an unknown named Obash. In that effort he carried an impost nine pounds greater than on Alsab, which seized the occasion to take the second of their three races to date.

Trainer Ben A. Jones shipped the Blenheim II son to Laurel Park Saturday, but has made no statement regarding his plans for the Washington. Trainer Augustus (Sarge) Swenke and Alsab are due to arrive at Pimlico in Baltimore tomorrow morning. Swenke has said Alsab will start in the Pimlico Special, for which Whirly is also eligible.

Among other likely starters in the Washington, Louisiana Farm's Rivland, which has come home first in his last eight starts but been disqualified twice, will carry third weight of 118, followed by W. L. Brann's veteran Challeon, 117, and Valdina Farm's Valdina Orphan, 114.

If Whirly does start in the Washington, at Jackie W. Pimlico, he will probably be aboard his regular rider, George Woolf, in under contract to Brann and will be aboard either Challeon or Pictor.

Of the 53 horses eligible for the 29th running of the Washington Cup, which was last year by Pictor, 18 are on the grounds or will be within a few days. Of these possible starters, Miss Helen Hickman's Aonbar followed The Orphan in the assigned weight, with 112 pounds. Others included: Brann's Pictor and Tom Heard Jr.'s Boys, 111; Greentree Stable's Swing and Sway and Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, 110; Cedar Farm's He Rolls and A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose, 109; Belair stud's Vagrancy, Greentree's Cory, 108; Howard Wells' Equifox and George D. Widener's Pictor, 107; A. C. Ernst's Aletan, 104; and Hal Price Headley's Equinox, 101.

Sinkwich Is 'Back of the Year,' Simons Tells Quarterbacks Club

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Tulane's Coach Claude Simons Jr., was asked today at the Monday quarterbacks' meeting what he meant prior to the Georgia catastrophe by: "My boys are going to take a pop at Georgia's All-American Sinkwich."

"Webster," quipped the quarterbacks, "defines a 'pop' as a 'short burst.'"

Simons answered without hesitation:

"My boys did take a pop at him. We lost, but they had him on the ground several times, you know. Sinkwich puts his pants on just like my boys do, but he's just a lot better."

Simons added that "in my book, Sinkwich is the back of the year," and said that although he had expected Tulane to make a better showing than it had, it was the old business of green line men trying to block out elusive veterans who knew how to slide out of range and go ahead to make their tackles.

Jackets To Be Favored In Navy Clash Saturday

Scout Norris Dean Reports Middies Are Good Team; Ralph Plaster Only Injured Engineer.

By JACK TROY.

Except for Alternate Captain Ralph Plaster, who has a foot injury, the Georgia Tech football squad reported in good condition to open work yesterday for the engagement with Navy Saturday at Annapolis.

Plaster's injury is in the nature of a separation of bones and is not expected to keep him out of the game. He'll merely take it easy this week.

Minnow Returns Angler's Tackle

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ed Bengert met about the most accommodating minnow you ever heard of down in the lake of the Ozarks.

He baited a hook with this minnow, a fast chub, and cast with his new $25 rod, negligently forgetting to hold onto the handle. It sank in 40 feet of water.

Lingered around the spot, addressing a few remarks to the other fish, Bengert was startled a few minutes later to see the little minnow struggle to the surface, still wearing the hook. He scooped it out of the water and hauled in 50 feet of line and his rod.

Morris Brown, Florida Meet Here Saturday

Morris Brown College, victorious over their arch rivals, the Maroon Tigers of Morehouse, last Saturday, starts preparing today for a hard contested game with Florida A. M. College Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park. This is the outstanding Negro game scheduled for Atlanta this year and one of the season's largest and most exciting.

Unbeaten after four games, the Jackets will be prepared to fill the air with passes on the Navy's home grounds. Navy has won two and lost two this season, dropping the opener to William and Mary, 3 to 0; swamping Virginia, 35 to 0; losing to Princeton, 10 to 0, and then, last week, outlasting Yale.

The potentialities of the Midshipmen is the worry of the Jacket coaches. They have the material and when it is welded into a cohesive force, it will be bad for the particular opponent of that Saturday.

However, the Jackets will go into the game as nominal favorites and should, by all odds, continue their winning streak.

VILLANOVA, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Coach Clipper Smith praised Freshman Center Art Alois today as the Villanova College gridders started workouts for the Auburn game Saturday. Alois showed a lot of poise for a beginner, Smith said.

EAGLES ARE O. K.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—As Boston College football players were given a holiday today as a reward for their 7-6 victory over the North Carolina Pre-Flight team, checkup showed the squad had emerged from the bruising contest in good physical shape.

Grid Crowds 25 Per Cent Off Thus Far

Alabama, L. S. U., Tennessee, Vandy, Columbia Show Gains.

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—College football attendance, as reflected in 127 games played so far this season by 44 colleges of major caliber, is about 25 per cent lower than it was a year ago.

A number of reasons are given for the changes in individual cases, such as adverse weather conditions at games that ordinarily would draw capacity crowds, the failure of one team or another to measure up to its usual standard as a drawing card or schedule changes that replaced big games with lesser ones, but only two apply to the whole list—transportation and the war.

LOWER TOTAL.

These colleges, chosen to give a cross-section of the national football scene, have played before a total of 2,296,797 spectators so far this fall. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a total turnout of 3,028,355.

The decrease is a general one, with only a few exceptions and few cases where the drop has been much greater than the general average. Boston College, Columbia, Purdue, Alabama, Louisiana State, Tennessee and Vanderbilt report greater attendance than in 1941, but in each case it is pointed out that this year's games have been unusually attractive. Many of these colleges also are conveniently located.

The sharpest attendance slump was reported by Cornell, where inaccessibility combined with poor performances have combined to slash attendance from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,387 this year. Michigan, Nebraska, Missouri, Stanford, California and Ohio State are some of the other schools that attribute the decline largely to transportation difficulties.

OHIO STATE OFF.

At Ohio State, where 287,713 fans turned out for five home games last year and a total of 488,468 saw the Bucks' eight contests, officials figure that it will take all 10 games on this year's slate to equal the 1941 total. They point out also, that last year scores of school buses from all over the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions on "high school days." This year such use of buses is forbidden.

On the Pacific coast, California's big games with St. Mary's and Santa Clara both drew over 50,000 spectators last fall. This year's figures were 37,278 for the St. Mary's game and 33,926 for Santa Clara.

At Utah University officials summed up the whole situation in a few words. "People are not thinking football," they said.

Injury To Keep Bulger on Shelf

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Chet Bulger's physician said tonight it was doubtful that a back injury suffered by the Chicago Cardinal tackle in yesterday's game with the Detroit Lions would permit him to return to football this season.

"It appears from a first series of X-rays that he has fractured the left transverse process of the fourth lumbar vertebra," the physician, Dr. A. G. Armstrong, explained. "It is not serious, but it is a painful and disabling injury. I doubt if he'll be able to return to the game this season."

Tide, Bulldogs, Jackets Loom As SEC Titlists

Round Robin May Settle Issue; L. S. U. Is Dark Horse.

The stage was set yesterday for a battle royal for Southeastern conference honors among the circuit's three undefeated-until powerhouses, giving at least one dark horse an outside chance to share in the unofficial title.

This week's card of two conference contests and four inter-sectionals will have little opportunity to clear up the scramble, although Alabama may defend its unbeaten status against Kentucky. Thereafter, however, it will be pitted against power in the last five weeks, with all the undefeated contenders battling each other.

Emerging unbeaten from such struggling Alabama, Georgia or Georgia Tech could become the popular champion to succeed Mississippi State's unsuccessful defending titlist. There's a "but" to this three-ring circus, though.

For the sake of all possibilities, suppose all of the three unbeaten would lose once in this Georgia-Alabama-Georgia Tech show—each has two chances against the presently undefeated. Then, that would pave the way for a dark-horse threat.

It would give Louisiana State some sort of a chance, for the Tigers could then see hope. They will know pretty soon, however, if they are to be reckoned with as they are to tackle tough Tennessee next week and then finish up against Auburn and Tulane.

Florida, the only other team unbeaten within the conference but socked twice outside, technically has a chance in the eventuality that the Gators have tougher traveling. They must meet Mississippi State this week and then go up against both Georgia and Georgia Tech in November.

In addition, Georgia has another conference test with Auburn, Alabama has another with Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech has an additional one with Kentucky.

Alabama goes to Lexington this week to engage a Kentucky eleven that has bowed only to the decision to Georgia and Vanderbilt. Bama stopped Tennessee last week, 8-0, for its fourth straight victory—its second in the conference.

Mississippi has an engagement with Arkansas at Memphis and Auburn will entertain Villanova at Montgomery, both in night inter-sectionals. L. S. U. also gets another night test against Georgia's Naval Pre-Flight at Baton Rouge.

Other Saturday games are Tulane-North Carolina, Vanderbilt-Center and Tennessee-Furman.

Sinkwich Leads Scorers In S.E.C. With 48 Points

Bob Steuber, Missouri Ace, Paces Nation With Total of 63; Buckeyes' Fekete Has 52.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Bob Steuber, senior halfback at the University of Missouri, is the leading scorer today among the nation's college football players.

Steuber, a former end, scored 24 points Saturday to boost his total for the season to 63. In five games with the defending Big Six conference champions, he has rambled to ten touchdowns and kicked three extra points.

Game Is Won In Last Second

BALDWIN, Kas., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Only one second remained in the game between Baldwin and Spring Hill and it looked like the home team's 28-game winning streak was ended. The score was 0-0.

But the center beat the time-keeper's gun and flipped the ball in time for completion of a 13-yard forward pass and victory No. 29, 6 to 0.

Maroon End Hurt; Two Fight for Post

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Competition is adding spirit to the Mississippi State Maroons' workouts this week as two linemen seek to fill the temporary vacancy left at end when Captain Bob Patterson suffered a jaw fracture in the Vanderbilt game.

Kermit Davis, veteran, is filling the assignment now, but John Hughes, junior letterman, appears to have a good chance to start here against Florida. Patterson may be lost to the squad for two weeks or longer.

Headgear Found At Piedmont Park

Some youngster playing sandlot football on the polo field at Piedmont Sunday went home without his headgear.

It may be recovered by calling Jack Small, Walnut 5473. Mr. Small picked it up and took it home in hopes of learning the owner so he could return it.

CAN YOU "BEET" IT?

BOZEMAN, Mont., Oct. 19.—(AP)—There's no football at Montana State College because of the war, so the gridders and other male students are bringing in the sugar beets. They volunteered to go to eastern Montana for the work. Only women's classes are being held during the harvest.

1,211 Yards Rushing, 880 Passing Is Bulldog Total

Tulane and Ole Miss Have Yielded Most Yardage; Sinkwich May Pass '41 Record.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 19.—Fireball Frankie Sinkwich has played less than half the lots because in Georgia's five football games this season, but the Bulldog captain is well on his way to surpassing his total yardage gained last season.

Statistics for the five past games show Sinkwich has rushed for 308 yards and passed for 499 others, making a total of 807 total. Georgia has six more games to play, so Frankie may get past that mark of last season when he was second to Bill Dudley, of Virginia, in total yards gained.

2,091 YARDS IN ALL.

While the Bulldogs took things fairly easy this afternoon after shelling Tulane, 40 to 0 Saturday, a review of statistics on the club showed the Georgians have gained 2,091 yards rushing and passing this season. Of this total, 1,211 was rushing and 880 on passes.

The Bulldogs have averaged 17 first downs per game. Strangely, the largest amount of yards have been made against two strong Southeastern conference rivals, Ole Miss and Tulane.

Against Ole Miss the Bulldogs piled up a net of 654 yards and against Tulane the total was 474.

LONG SCRIMMAGE.

Coch Coach Wallace Butts sent his scrubs through a long scrimmage, but the boys who played most against Tulane had an easy afternoon.

The scrimmage was encouraging to the Bulldog boss because he saw several reserves who looked like they might come through and help out before the season is over.

Most outstanding was Red Vickery, a right end and Ardie McClure, left tackle. Both boys made several nice plays against the freshmen.

The varsity will get a taste of rough work Tuesday and Wednesday before departing for Cincinnati on Thursday.

Ex-Purple Stars To Coach Rebels

Ray Miller, backfield star of the 1937 Boys' High team, and his brother, Milton, guard of last year's G. I. A. A. champions, have taken over the coaching duties of Atlanta's Dixie Rebels, formerly coached by George Pope and Howard Brenner, who have joined the armed services.

The Rebels started the season in grand style by defeating the Darlington Midgets, of Rome, 19 to 0, and Saturday night took the measure of the strong G. M. A. Midgets, 13 to 7.

After hard ten-game schedule with teams in and around Atlanta, the Rebels finish the season with a two-game series with Cincinnati, Ohio.

Unidentified Man, 70, Hit by Trolley, Dies

Struck on Trestle near Woodland, Pedestrian Succumbs.

Struck by a north-bound Marietta trolley on a trestle near Woodland station, an unidentified man, about 70 years old, received injuries last night from which he died a few moments after admission to Grady hospital.

T. H. Jones, operator of the trolley, told Grady hospital officials that the man apparently slipped and partially fell through the trestle in his haste to outrun the trolley. Jones said he did not see the man in time to stop the trolley.

The body was pinned beneath the trolley and the car had to be jacked up to remove him.

No papers of identification were found on him but his hat bore the initials "Dr. A. D. A."

The body, being held at Grady hospital morgue while officials sought his identity.

The plane was wrecked at a high mountain near Des Moines early Saturday and Army officials spent hours reaching the scene.

Yanks Teach Cannibals to Talk English, Give Special Salute

AN ADVANCED U. S. BOMBER BASE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Oct. 3.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Life is no picnic for the gunners and maintenance crews in this remote corner of the Pacific. Still, they have their fun.

Most of the islands have their share of cannibals, but the enlisted men have them eating out of their hands. They even have induced some of them to wear clothes, to say a few words of English, and to recognize an officer and salute him—in a manner taught by the soldiers.

A favorite trick, says Corporal John Gleason, of Santa Cruz, Cal., is to teach the natives to salute the officer and then say, "Go to hell."

Those words might comprise the grinning native's entire English vocabulary.

The officers don't mind. War is like that.

Norwegians' Land Predicts Shipping Does Winter Rise in Job Like RAF Axis Sinkings

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Enemy submarine sinkings of United Nations' merchant vessels will increase in the next few months, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, predicted today.

Land, addressing the annual meeting of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, said the longer nights of winter and rough weather tended to favor the submarine over the patrol forces which protect our shipping.

He estimated merchant ship production in this country would be at the rate of four a day by the end of January, compared with three now and two last April.

Contracts in the wartime construction program have been let for 3,804 cargo vessels, Land said, of which 1,998 have been delivered and 2,506 are under construction or awaiting their turn on 241 ways.

"We have 3,000,000 tons of shipping," he said. "Those ships are manned by 20,000 Norwegian sailors, some of the best sailors in the world."

In Trondheim.

Dr. Skard was in Trondheim when the Germans invaded that tiny country in April, 1940. Luckily, his wife, a student of psychology, had received a scholarship two weeks before from the American Association of University Women and had carried their two smallest children, four-month-old twin boys, into Sweden.

"Spring was late that year," he recalled. "A Norwegian officer escaped two weeks after the Germans came on skis over the Swedish frontier."

Dr. Skard later that summer managed to smuggle his two children, three-year-old twin girls, out of Norway and into neutral Sweden.

He and his family set out for the United States, traveling through Russia, Siberia and Japan to New York. Dr. Skard came to Atlanta to speak at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the church building at Emory University on "Norway Fights On."

He is staying at the Biltmore hotel.

His wife is on a lecture tour in California.

In addition to the merchant marine, Norwegians are constantly harassing the Germans with sabotage, slowdowns, teasing and hampering methods, Dr. Skard said.

"That home front makes me proud to be a Norwegian," he said. "The home front is very important. The Americans never have fully understood it the torture methods used by the Germans on conquered people."

U. S. Over Cautious.

"You Americans have been over cautious about believing those stories of cruelty," he said. "I believe the Japanese acts of atrocity have opened the American eyes some, but the Germans have far more elaborate torture methods."

One of the favorite Nazi methods, Dr. Skard continued, is to beat the prisoners mercilessly. They then drive spikes under the finger nails, break fingers one at a time and the like.

The lack of food in Norway, already producing skin disorders and other malnutrition diseases, will be worse this winter, he said. "The daily diet of the Norwegian, consists of a scant serving of potatoes, bad fish—the Nazis keep the good fish—a little horse meat, no butter or milk and no cheese or eggs. Dr. Skard pointed out. They get only black bread."

Not Lying Down.

However, he smiled, the Norwegians are not taking it lying down. "There's a long and mountainous frontier between Norway and Sweden," he said. "It is very hard to guard. Sweden also has a very long coast that is impossible to guard."

"We speak of the North Sea route as the 'North Sea bus'."

Others go from Norway to Moscow, to Istanbul, to the Persian Gulf, to India, South Africa, Trinidad and Canada, he explained. "And when those fellows get here they mean to fight."

"You can bet on that."

The 39-year-old lecturer and author pointed out that two squadrons of Norwegians took part in the raid on Dieppe. "One squadron shot down eight German planes and the other one got six."

"We have one cause to be proud of our fighting men."

MORTUARY.

Nazi Bombers Raid 16 Towns In East Anglia

Low Clouds Permit Daylight Sortie by German Craft.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Flying singly and widely separated out of low cloud cover and in greater strength than for some time, German daylight raiders bombed and machinegunned 16 towns and villages in East Anglia and on the Thames Estuary today and killed about 20 persons.

One town was attacked three times, and rescue workers were still digging in the ruins tonight for bodies.

Not more than 30 enemy planes were estimated to be in the scattered raid. Two were shot down, others were damaged.

For the first time since January, 1941, London heard three air raid alarms, all within two hours in the morning. Each was brief and was caused by the approach of single planes which dropped no bombs on the city. London's last daylight alert was October 10.

4th District Sale of Bonds Exceeds Quota

Compilation Made for May-September Period by Ely R. Callaway.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LAGRANGE, Ga., Oct. 19.—Fourth district war bond and stamp sales from May through September exceeded the quota by almost a half million dollars, Ely R. Callaway, district chairman here, announces.

The quota for the 15 counties in the district beginning with May and extending through September, was $2,595,000, and the bond and stamp sales totaled $3,052,093.63, the quota being exceeded by $457,093.63. Mr. Callaway states, after compiling the five months' sales in the district.

Mr. Callaway's compilation shows that several counties oversold their quota by high percentages. Coweta, Clayton and Meriwether exceeding the set sum by more than 60 per cent. A majority of the counties oversold their

Henderson Blocks Tenant Eviction in 'Phony Sale' Deals

Council Gives $2,500 as Part In Vice Drive

Fulton Will Be Asked To Allocate Another $2,500, DeKalb $500.

City council yesterday pledged $2,500 as its part of a proposed $5,500 fund to curb vice and the spread of venereal diseases in the Atlanta area.

The sum of $1,000 was appropriated outright and an additional $1,500 was pledged if it is needed. Councilmen J. Allen Couch and James E. Jackson said they supported the allocation with the understanding that the law is enforced without favoritism, and Councilman Paul Butler cast the only dissenting vote against the proposal.

Under plans of a special committee of law enforcement, health and army agencies and private citizens, Fulton county will be asked to allocate another $2,500 and DeKalb county $500 to the war chest designed to drive prostitutes from the Atlanta area and avoid invocation of the May act in Atlanta.

City council's ordinance committee will consider a proposal by Councilman John A. White to ask the Georgia legislature to provide "home rule" for Georgia cities having a population in excess of 300,000 persons. The new law, if approved, would extend to Atlanta only.

Use of city schools in future Atlanta primaries and elections was approved by council, and White announced that Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., has tendered its home at 270 Fifteenth street, N. E., for future elections, since there is no school convenient to precinct "C," fifth ward.

A proposal to require all applicants for city employment to be interviewed in first aid was referred to the city personnel board for recommendation.

The finance committee will study a proposal to revise fire and lightning insurance of city buildings. At the present time the city carries insurance valued at $1,800,000, but a new proposal would provide $3,100,000 in insurance. Present premiums amount to $16,206 every three years as compared to $18,700 every three years for the revised schedule.

6,000,000 Face Starvation in China Province

Lack of Transportation Heightens Tragedy of Famine.

CHUNGKING, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Thousands are dying daily and 6,000,000 persons are on the verge of starvation in Honan province as the result of one of the worst famines in modern times. Missionaries and Chinese officials reported today.

Letters and reports painted a harrowing picture of the destitute reduced to eating grass and the bark of trees, stripping dry fields bare, and selling their children to persons who could care for them or leaving them to starve by the roadside.

Famine conditions started three months ago as the result of a two-year general drought, spring frosts which killed crops, locust plagues and a brief Japanese invasion of some districts last October which caused abandonment of harvests.

Heightening the tragedy of famine, which usually is caused in China by lack of transportation, a Tokyo broadcast today said bumper crops 10 to 30 per cent above last year in rice, wheat and cotton were being harvested in the Yangtze delta and central China. War zones, adding to the usual difficulties of transport, have now cut off the fruitful region from much of the famine area.

The restrictions will go into effect tomorrow in the 190 existing rent control areas and November 1 in 97 additional areas where rent control starts then. The evicting rules may be extended to the entire country-December 5.

Henderson explained that the principal device of some landlords in attempting to evade rent control had been to force the tenant to buy the house or to sell it to someone else willing to pay monthly installments in excess of the legal rent.

To combat what Henderson called phony sales, he ordered that no one in a rent control area could be evicted, except under special circumstances, without three months notice. Henderson also required that if anyone besides the tenant buys an occupied house, he can not get possession until he has paid one-third of the purchase price, not counting any borrowed money.

Other rules provide that no eviction for any reason can be made in a rent control area without a certificate of eviction from the local OPA representative.

BACK THE HARD WAY—Here's a Wellington bomber back on its home airfield after bombing Bremen, where it was hit by anti-aircraft fire. Daringly the pilot put the plane into a steep dive and blew out the fire which burned the fuselage from bomb doors to rear turret. Then, with damaged controls, no navigation instruments and no radio, the pilot and crew limped the long way home. They will be able to fight another day.

Florida Labor Solicitor Held By S. C. Police

Governor Acts in Face of Okay by Federal Agency.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Governor R. M. Jefferies said tonight that state constables and Spartanburg Sheriff Sam M. Henry, directed by Seventh District Solicitor Samuel R. Watt, of Spartanburg, had taken a representative of a Florida concern into custody at Spartanburg on a charge of violating the state's law prohibiting the soliciting of labor without a license.

Jefferies said he had been informed that a man listed as Glenn Huff, a representative of the Fellemsmere Sugar Production Association, of Fellemsmere, Fla., had been charged with attempting to take 100 bean pickers and cane cutters from the Spartanburg area to work in Florida.

The Governor said he had received first notice of the intended labor solicitation last Friday,

Communist Paper Demands Clarification of Hess' Status

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Soviet Union called today for clarification of the status of Rudolf Hess, British-held former Nazi leader, in a Pravda editorial which declared that he should be tried immediately or be considered an "ambassador of Hitler" in Great Britain.

The editorial in the official Communist party newspaper followed up a statement by the government October 15 calling for immediate trial and punishment of any German ringleader "who, in the course of the war, has fallen into the hands of states fighting against Hitlerite Germany."

When he had been informed that the U. S. Employment Service had approved the intended solicitation, He said that Joseph L. Keitt, state director of the employment service, had confirmed this, and that he had written Keitt that should any attempt be made, the Governor's office would proceed against the solicitors.

Comeback Is Likely For Vivian Leigh In 'If Winter Comes'

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD. Just heard from a confidential source that Vivian Leigh may be loaned by David Selznick to M-G-M for "If Winter Comes." Vivian Leigh isn't willing to return to America for the duration so it's a case of "If the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain." In other words, Pan Berman, who had the adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's best seller of 20 years ago already written, may send it to England. Irving Asher would then produce it there with Harold Bucquet, who is at the M-G-M studios in London, directing the luscious Vivian.

The little Leigh, who was the hottest thing on the screen after "Gone With the Wind" and "Waterloo Bridge," hasn't made a movie in nearly two years.

That he-man, John Wayne, who has had to battle to prove he and his wife are not separating, is having no battles with his studio. In fact, he is so well liked there that despite flattering offers to borrow him Moe Seigel, producing head of Republic, wires he has a new tropical war thriller for John. The much discussed Dakar name and all is being written into an up-to-the-minute drama, "Flying Tigers," Republic pride and joy, is to be duplicated so far as cast is concerned. John Carroll, who is making as many movies as possible before he offers himself to Uncle Sam, will be paged and also comely Anna Lee.

Only last week Frances Farmer and Paramount parted company, which isn't surprising since she has done little on that lot. She is a fine actress, but rumor says she is hard to handle. Well, she and John Carradine can fight it out in Emil Ludwig's story, "The Hangman," which Seymour Nebenzal is producing at Republic. John Carradine plays the title role, and he should have more fun characterizing Heinrich, the hangman, the Nazi murderer who was assassinated. Nebenzal, just to keep the records straight, produced the famous "Mayerling."

Frank Morgan is one of the few top comedians of screen history who can go dramatic with the best of them. Look at his record in "Tortilla Flat," "Shop Around the Corner," and "White Cargo," and "The Human Comedy," the latter coming up. Frank is in the peculiar spot of having fans forget he is a comic with so many straight roles, and there is still another in the offing for him, "Mr. Justice Goes Hunting." It's a sentimental piece about a supreme court justice who goes vacationing in the backwoods and gets tangled in local politics. Richard Carlson and Ruth Hussey have the romantic leads with Roy Rowland, formerly of the "shorts" department, getting his first major directing assignment.

A LINE OR TWO: Alice Faye was telling Betty Grable about how her baby's teeth hurt coming in. Betty, who has had more wisdom tooth trouble than any gal in Hollywood, said: "Wait 'til she sees how they hurt coming out."

For a scene in "Star-Spangled Rhythm," Bob Hope and William Bendix have to strip to their shorts. Bob took one look at Bendix's bay window and cracked: "Ahi! A hoarder!" Henry Fonda drove on the 20th lot with all his personal wardrobe in a station wagon. He's turning over everything, including dinner jackets, to Lynn Bari for the Navy aid auxiliary to be made over for children of service men. Hank won't be needing anything since he goes into uniform for Uncle Sam any day now.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The announcement of Benita Lind's engagement to Freddie Bartholomew is a surprise any day. She is the daughter of Judge Ben Lindsay and as cute as she can be. Marie McDonald forgot Bruce Cabot long enough to go stepping with Vic Orsatti; Cesar Romero will move his family into his Brentwood house when he goes into the Coast Guard next week; Maria Montez now rates a bungalow on the "U" lot, where she will live for the duration; Claudia Dell, Agent Eddie Silton's ex, at Mike Lyman's with Irving Baltimore; the 10 soldiers with Jack Oakie at the Players were all treated to a telephone call to the folks back home; Susanna Foster is giving up Paramount and Jamie Lydon simultaneously. She asked for and received her release from Paramount; Allan Jones is working with a sprained wrist suffered on the set. That's all today. See you tomorrow! But Lottie Denison, Nome, Texas, says: "Out of your pay check 10 per cent squeeze, and so help lick those wicked Japanese."

Today's Charm Tip
Not the least charming but the UGLIEST sight on earth is a woman under the influence of liquor. Add to it a flow of unspeakable language and you reach the nadir in human ugliness.

The coat pictured is a blue fox coney, made with rolled tuxedo collar and wide sleeves. The pelts are set vertically to give slenderizing lines. It is well lined with satin; lining of sleeves is gathered at the wrist for extra warmth. The price is $109.50, plus tax. ## MY DAY: Voice Recordings Reveal Defects

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Saturday afternoon I went to make a recording which is to be part of one of the Treasury programs. It will be an interesting program with messages from various women in different parts of the world. Most of them, however, were not available to speak for themselves.

I like to make recordings and hear the results played back, because I discover things I do incorrectly. In the first place, I learn exactly where I take a breath when I shouldn't. In the second place, I have a curiously artificial way of speaking, which annoys me terribly when I hear it afterwards. Still, I cannot find out exactly what I do that is wrong.

Yesterday, I think, I found that one of my troubles is pitching my voice too high at the start, and talking too slowly. Problems like this always interest me and each time I try to speak a little differently, in the hope that eventually it will all turn out better than it has before.

We have had the pleasure of having some children as guests over the weekend. I took the little boy to see the recording, since this generation understands far more about machines than any generation ever did.

On my return to the White House, I had a few people come in to tea. Among them was Mr. Kingsley Martin, who is one of the people who has long been active in the British labor movement. I was much interested in the opportunity to talk with him, since he has been over here some time studying conditions in this country.

Last evening we had a party which we planned primarily for the children—an early supper and a movie, the title of which sounded as though they would enjoy it. Unfortunately, it turned out to be the type of song and dance affair which I imagined was produced and sent very largely to other countries before the war. It depicts life in this country as it was never lived by any people I know.

My diplomatic friends tell me that this is one of the things which have helped to create strange impressions of life in the United States of America. Such stories never have had much basis in reality and will have less and less as the war goes on. Every day life has changed for people all over the world. It has changed for us in that everything we buy for our families and homes costs more, but I doubt if we have yet felt the complete extent of the change which will take place as the years of war continue.

Between-Meal Snacks Merely Rob Thin Girls Of Their Appetites

By Ida Jean Kain.

All you thin girls ought to stop eating between meals. That chocolate soda, or tea and frosted cakes, around 4 o'clock won't help you to gain. Such snacks put pounds on the fat girls but only take away what appetite you have.

How about it, girls? Your plan has failed, so why not try mine? Pin yourself down to three whole some meals a day and cut out the nibbling—and that goes for what you get at the cocktail hour.

There are two things against piece-meal eating. It not only spoils your appetite but it keeps you from getting the protective nutrients needed to build up your vitality. One skinny movie star, who ate between meals for years in an attempt to gain, lost weight steadily. She finally got down below 90 pounds. Then, on her doctor's orders, she cut out the nibbling and concentrated on three good meals a day, plus extra vitamin B. In a single week she gained five and one half pounds, and she kept on gaining until she was up to normal weight and health.

Eating between meals doesn't include milk. If your food capacity is small and you can't eat much at a time, it's an excellent plan to drink your milk between meals and before retiring. The general rule for weight gaining is to have your glass of milk one-third cream but whole milk does very nicely. By drinking three glasses of whole milk a day you get 540 calories. You only need to add 500 calories to your daily requirement in order to gain at the rate of one pound per week. Another important rule is to have your meals at the same time every day. That, of course, is a good rule for everyone but especially for you girls who are too thin. You are apt to lose your appetite completely when you go past the usual meal hour. And when you miss a meal it's serious. Your small food capacity keeps you from making up the calories you have missed.

You can gradually increase your capacity by taking just a little more food at each meal. You would do well to add a second piece of bread and another pat of butter to your usual fare in addition to the milk between meals. Your menus should always be built around the protective foods. You need the essentials they furnish. Here are the foods you should have every day—milk, fruits, a green salad, a green leafy and yellow vegetable, whole grain bread, butter and baked or broiled meats.

You can get the calories you need to gain on by having cream soups, sauces, scalloped dishes, plenty of butter and cream, and simple desserts. Leave rich, heavy foods out of the menu. Fried foods are hard to digest and rich pastries and heavy desserts don't contribute enough nutrients along with the calories.

Send a large stamped return envelope for the "Weight-Gaining Menus" and serve fare that will build curves and vitality.

Consideration of Others To Cure Bashfulness

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I met a very attractive Army man at a camp not long ago and liked him very much. He asked me to let him know through another boy when he could come to see me, but the people with whom I was visiting just did not like him, so I did not see him but the one time. I heard from them later that he came to see me the day I left to come home. Would it be all right for me to write him first? He does not have my address and I would like very much to correspond with him.

WONDERING.
Yes, drop him a card and tell him how sorry you were to miss his visit and to write you and let you know what he is doing and how he is getting along. And be sure to add your address.

If you were in the following condition what would you do? I am 20 years old, although I look about 18. I'll admit that I still giggle and act foolish sometimes, but I do not mean anything by it. I am attending a N. Y. A. school at the present and of course have roommates. There are all sorts of people to come to and make you feel that you are not alone. I cannot meet people and mix with them socially like I would like to. I am from a very nice family and am considered very nice looking but I have a struggle mixing in social activities. What must I do? I have to worry very much about it. I want to be a stand-by and a friend to everyone, not a one-sided person who is known as the lone wolf.

WORRIED BLUE EYES.
Forget about yourself, Worried Blue Eyes, and begin to consider the problem of making others have a good time. I think that you are always on the defensive and this does not tend to make you very friendly with the others. Go on with the girls and boys and forget the fact that you are considered so pretty and that you are from such a fine family. Try to meet the others half way at least, and try to understand them and their problems and enter into their activities, by being interested in what they are doing. They do not stand back and wait for them to bring you an invitation on a silver platter. You have got to remember in this world that people have to go out and make their own way and cannot sit back and wait for others to come looking for them. This crowd at the school may be in your set and they may not be, but if you wish to mingle with them and enjoy being with them you have got to forget class distinction and meet them on their own footing. They are no different from you in likes and dislikes and so try to understand them and meet them in a co-operative spirit. Being a friend is being on the giving end so why not try to give to this crowd some interest and to come looking for themselves. This crowd of interest to them that they will want you with them all the time.

Dr. Brady On Health

Saccharin Instead of Sugar.
Ben Tol saccharin for sweetening foods may harm the kidneys if used in excess. (V. B.)

Answer—Saccharin (otherwise called gluside and benzoesulfonide) is a coal-tar product commonly used as a sweetener in place of sugar. It is not oxidized in the body, yields no caloric or fuel or energy value, merely gives the sweetening taste which sugar would give. A quarter grain of it has about the same sweetening effect in coffee, for instance, as a teaspoonful of sugar. People often spell saccharin "saccharine"—saccharin is the name of this compound, saccharine is an adjective meaning sweet. Use of up to five grains a day as a sweetening substitute for sugar is harmless.

Cruelty Inherent in Children.
Son, 7, unhappy because spot on head is bald, from bad scar resulting from a burn. Children at school tease him and shout bald-head and grampa at him and we fear he will never want to go to school. (Mrs. D. W.)

Answer—Most children are vicious little animals in their propensity for torturing the child who happens to suffer any defect or deformity. They outgrow it as they develop the I. Q. of 9 or 10 years. Nothing can possibly make hair grow in scar tissue. One alternative is plastic operation by skilled surgeon. Another is to have a partial toupee made to conceal the bare spot.

Escorts for Halloween Ball Announced by Debutantes

By SALLY FORTH.

THE NAMES of the favored young men who have been invited to escort debutantes to the traditional Halloween ball on October 31 at the Driving Club are announced today, the news eliciting the keen interest of fashionable society.

The regulations concerning the ball will, this year, be a little different. Instead of each deb inviting two escorts, as has been the custom, only the officers will enjoy the privilege of two dates. Young men escorting debutantes will wear either uniforms or tuxedos. Tails—the badge of formality—will be dispensed with at the brilliant ball for the first time in social history.

Helen Taulman, president of the Debutante Club, will attend the party with Jimmy Porter and John Marchant, of Greenville, S. C. Virginia Boynton, vice president, will be escorted by George Mizell and Mack Bell. Jacqueline Thiesen, secretary, will be with Langdon Quin Jr. and Homer Starr, and Laura Shallenberger, treasurer, will attend with Pat Wilson and Walter Pettit.

Members of the Debutante Club and their dates are: Nannie Johnson, with Stewart Gauder; Frances Woodruff, with Lieutenant Robert Hallack, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mary Ann Robinson, with Hughes Schroeder; Janet Allcorn, with Lieutenant E. M. Ory Williams; Mary Walker, with William Scott; Mary Brooke Lucas, of Fort McPherson, with Lieutenant Archer Lackey; Anne Crowley, with Alton Jenkins, of Thomaston; Pat Slater, with Lieutenant Robert Livengood; Mary Hurt Clayton, with Thornton Kennedy, of this city and Macon; Peggy Dunham, with Bob Pringle; and Dot Chapman, with Bobby Byrd.

Several of the debutantes who are off at school have not, as yet, obtained leave to attend the ball, but the names of their dates will be announced when they are available.

The debutantes have agreed to participate in the Community Fund Appeal drive, and Dot Chapman has been appointed their chairman. They will make plans for activity on behalf of the fund today when they assemble for luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Helen Taulman, president, reports that the club members sold over $200 worth of forget-me-nots in the recent drive. This is the largest forget-me-not sum ever raised by a debutante club in this city, which is a distinct compliment to capable Frances Woodruff, who served as chairman.

It was decided at a meeting on Sunday that between 1,500 and 2,000 guests will be invited to attend the formal presentation party of the debutantes scheduled for December 28.

MUSIC LOVERS of Canton, Ga., and surrounding sections have a treat in store for them this evening when Atlanta's petite and talented pianist, Eugenia Snow, will be presented in concert. Eugenia, whose small hands command the keyboard in an amazing manner and whose repertoire is vast and varied, will go to Canton as the guest of the Canton Glee Club. It is interesting, too, to note that Lucien Thompson, a former Atlantan, is president of the Glee Club and will act as official host at the ball. He will be accompanied to Canton by her mother, Mrs. George D. Snow. The affair is scheduled as one of the highlights of the fall season in Canton and its importance is evidenced by the fact that it will take place in the high school auditorium, which has a seating capacity of several hundred.

Eugenia is president of the Young Artists' Group of the Atlanta Music Club and has appeared in many concerts here as well as in Savannah and a number of Georgia cities.

A COLORFUL prelude to the horse show next Saturday to be sponsored by the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Club, will be the fashion show to be staged on Friday during the luncheon hour at Davison-Paxson's. A group of members of the club will model sports clothes and riding attire appropriate for appearance at the show the following day at North Fulton Park.

Among the models will be such attractive young matrons as Mesdames Hicks Lanier, Carroll Payne Jones, Charles Brumby, Guy Carpenter, John Rittelmeyer, Albert Alexander, Curtis Lehner, Herman Berg, Paul Davis and Harry Lange.

GLIMPSED in Athens over the weekend: Jacqueline Thiesen and Peggy Durham, popular debutantes, cheering at the Georgia-Tulane football game, and being rushed by the tagline later at the Kappa Alpha house dance. . . . Laura and "Boosie" Turman, Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver, Hugh and Laura Dorsey and the Julian Robinsons enjoying the get-together at the Chi Phi house. . . . Lieutenant Dan Sage, U. S. N., enjoying the game. . . . Clara Jones, who spent the weekend in Athens, wearing a chic beige corduroy suit, and conversing with friends.

Surprise Blackout Set This Week

The surprise test blackout—and it's really going to be a surprise—is scheduled some time this week.

So George M. Phillips, civilian defense director for the Metropolitan area, is issuing last-minute warnings. "If you're going to be away from home at night," don't leave lights on," he said, adding that "business houses will be checked thoroughly for signs and lights which cannot be turned out from outside switches."

Oh, yes . . . and the time, Mr. Phillips?

"Well, I really don't know," was his reply. "You see, I've forgotten what day, night or time the thing is scheduled."

What Stocks Did

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(P)—The stock market had a number of firm spots today but many of the top flight leaders were neglected. The limited quantity of buying was rather evenly distributed among the utilities, railroads and steel in the background. Speculators were the smallest for nearly a month at 401,090 shares compared with 504,890 on Friday. Bonds were steady with fresh demand for reorganization rails. In the curb better marks were posted by Aluminum of America, American Gas & Electric, Gulf Oil and Transcontinental Dredging. Transactions here were 96,100 shares against 53,575 the previous five-hour session.

Georgian Arrives In Australia, 159 Days From Bataan

By MURLIN SPENCER.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Captain William Lloyd Osborne, of Los Angeles, and First Lieutenant Damon Gause, of Winder, Ga., have arrived safely in Australia after a dramatic escape from the Philippines and a 159-day journey by foot and small boat.

"We arrived here not by any expert navigation but by the grace of God," declared the bronzed Osborne.

During their long southward trip, which ended October 11, the officers hid by day and traveled by night, several times escaping by a narrow margin encounters with Japanese troops and ships. They survived a machinegunning by a Japanese plane almost within sight of Australia and once sailed right by two Japanese cruisers which ignored them.

Both Put on Weight. Despite the vicissitudes they endured, both men put on weight during the long, hazardous trip. The final lap of the voyage was made in a 22-foot native-built motorboat, in which the adventurers set out August 15. They completed their 1,500-mile journey by making a landfall within 15 miles of the point they had set as their goal.

The log which they kept during the trip ended with this entry: "We close this log with much relief and rejoicing."

Both men apparently were in excellent physical condition when they reached Australia.

Fought on Bataan. Osborne, an infantry officer, fought on Bataan peninsula in the Philippines with a Filipino unit and refused to surrender when the American forces were forced to capitulate. Instead he elected to make a break for freedom with a Filipino officer and two Filipino privates.

The four went into the mountains, cut back to the shore and rowed for 18 hours across Manila bay. They then struck across the mountains south of Manila, working their way southward by night until they finally found refuge in the wilds near Taal volcano, where they separated.

Osborne began a two-month existence as a fugitive, living on native foodstuffs, wild fruits and vegetables and always seeking a means of escape.

Gause Captured. Gause, an airman assigned temporarily to service with ground troops during the battle of Bataan, was en route to the front lines shortly before the capitulation.

He unexpectedly encountered a Japanese armored truck but jumped into a river bed and hid there all night. The next night he quietly picked his way through Japanese troops sleeping feet to feet on mats scattered along the river.

His luck finally failed him, however, for after swimming along the coast he walked ashore and was captured by the Japanese.

"I figured that if I was going to get away I'd better go before the Japs got organized and rounded up the prisoners under guard," he said.

"So I made a break for it and swam to a boat anchored some distance off shore. They spotted me while I was swimming, and fired a few rifle shots, but missed."

"I was exhausted and slept in the boat for a few hours. Then I cut loose a rowboat tied alongside and started rowing away. They opened up on me with machineguns but missed again."

Gause counted machinegun bullet holes in his boat when he reached Corregidor island.

When the surrender of Corregidor appeared imminent, Gause took a native boat and headed for the Luzon mainland by night. A storm upset the boat, but he hung on until daylight and then swam ashore.

Later he learned from natives that another American was seeking to escape and through them arranged a meeting. It was months, however, before he and Osborne finally came together.

Obtain Motorboat. They began planning their flight from Luzon and ultimately obtained a motorboat with a cranky Diesel engine from the Filipinos, who were afraid to run it. They rigged a sail for added power in case of emergency.

On August 15, with the American flag flying boldly from the masthead, they set sail on a voyage which was to last 58 days.

Asked how they got along together on the long trip, Gause said:

"Once we didn't speak to each other for three days, but we knew our survival depended upon our pulling together."

They lived on fish and rice, some of which they obtained from natives, but took a desperate chance each time they went ashore because Japanese patrols were active.

Atlas Map, Compass. They had an Atlas map on a large scale and a compass—their only navigating equipment. Gause was the navigator.

After surviving a two-day typhoon early in September that tossed their boat around like an eggshell, Gause noted in the log: "I've seen everything now in the way of bad weather."

The old boat labored and panted and several times they were forced to beach the craft to plug leaks and caulk spreading seams.

When they ran short of fuel oil they went ashore and got coconut oil from the natives, which they mixed with their own dwindling supply.

"Then we set up a smoke screen, because that stuff blacked out the whole boat," said Gause.

Pass Jap Cruisers. Cruising alone, bucking strong winds and taking heavy seas over the bow, they once passed two Japanese cruisers escorting two transports, but were unnoticed. At another time they sailed close enough to an island to see the Rising Sun flag overhead.

Then came this entry in the log: "October 3—At precisely 2:20 this afternoon a twin-engine Japanese plane circled and machine-gunned us for 15 minutes. No material damage done."

On October 11 they met a motor launch with an Australian army officer who gave them food, water and tobacco—among the food was a can of peaches. They anchored and ate these on the spot.

Almost more important than the food, however, was the fact they received instructions as to how to reach the nearest town on the Australian mainland.

Uruguay Grants Permit To Salvage Graf Spee

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Uruguayan government authorized a private firm today to raise the hull of the scuttled German pocket battleship Graf Spee from the bottom of the River Plate in order to reclaim the ship's steel.

The Graf Spee has been gradually sinking into the muddy river bed since salvagers removed the superstructure a year ago. The 10,000-ton Nazi warship was driven to suicide in Montevideo harbor on December 17, 1939, after losing a running battle to the British in the Atlantic.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(INS)—German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has contracted a stomach disease and will not return to Africa, the Daily Express said today, quoting a dispatch from Stockholm.

The former gutter fighter who rose to become commander of the Axis Afrika Korps now is unfit for military service, the dispatch said.

This was a flat contradiction to the Axis assertion last week that Rommel had left Germany and returned to his desert post.
